Kick in the head, wrong university

Lost circus three-ring blunder

LONDON (UPI) — The case of the vanishing circus ended Monday when five truckloads of performing animals, jugglers and assorted performers turned up in the university town of Cambridge. But they should have been in the university town of Oxford, where the big top had already been set up, and clowns and elephants grew impatient. The Hoffman Circus convoy became separated during the weekend when transport manager Peter Mack was kicked in the head by a mule and had to spend a night in hospital. In his absence, the five-truck caravan went astray from the main body of the circus on the 56-mile drive from London to Oxford.

The missing troupe included a ringmaster, his wife and son, French jugglers and trick cyclists, two elephants, two camels, six llamas, one donkey, two mules, six Shetland ponies, two palomino horses and a bison.

A rather long missing persons and animals report was flashed throughout the south of England and by midday the caravan was found at Cambridge — about 80 miles off the mark.

"We are relieved that the animals have been found," Mack said. "They are in the winter quarters of a small circus. We are very grateful to the police and press for their help. Our show in Oxford will definitely go on on Thursday."

Bargaining in glare of flames

MONTREAL (CP) — Many Montrealers say the 30-hour strike by 2,400 firemen was one of the most frightening periods in the city's history.

For three nights — Thursday, Friday and Saturday — the sky glowed red in areas where fires burned out of control. Some could be seen from offices where efforts were being made to end the strike.

The firemen, prohibited by law from going on strike, finally agreed to a settlement early Sunday following the personal intervention of Premier Robert Bourassa.

Mayor Jean Drapeau said the city would pay the firemen the $750 cost-of-living bonus they sought, but it would be considered an annex to a still-to-be-negotiated 1975 contract.

The firemen wanted their present contract renegotiated to make the $750 part of their 1974 salary scale. The city refused on grounds that other unions would demand renegotiation of 1974 contracts.

The city agreed to stop injunction proceedings against the firemen's union, but will not drop legal action against individual firemen for damage to equipment during months leading up to the strike.

One NDP MLA bolts ranks in market vote

To no one's surprise, a Social Credit motion to defer the Natural Products Marketing Act failed Tuesday, but a crack appeared in government ranks when the vote was called. (See earlier story page 32.)

Roy Cummings (NDP-Vancouver-Little Mountain) was the only non-Socred who voted to table the bill for six months, to give the standing committee on agriculture a chance to examine the operation of marketing boards.

Debate on the bill, which will establish an overseer board with community representation, took up most of Tuesday's sitting, but when the vote on the Social Credit motion came, it lost 37-11.

Although Liberals voted with the government, they made it clear they wanted the entire bill tossed out.

Garde Gardom (L-Vancouver Point Grey) said the bill "should not be deferred, it should be wiped out. What we don't need in B.C. is Moscow marketing."

The Social Credit claim that a six-month delay would allow Agriculture Minister David Stinson to revise the legislation is like claiming "that the postponement of an execution is an act of compassion," Gardom added.

The provincial government will boost the 8 per cent rental ceiling by 2.6 per cent on Jan. 1, 1975, and lift the ceiling entirely from new rental accommodation.

Under the Landlord and Tenant Amendment Act, introduced in the Legislature late Monday, the rental ceiling will rise from 8 per cent to 10.6 per cent on existing accommodation, providing the landlord informs his tenants of the increase before the end of November.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, who introduced the amendments, said he "didn't expect to come out smelling like a rose. If I had tried to please everyone, I wouldn't have been doing my job. I'm a cabinet minister, and that's where the buck stops."

Don't fool your frog with mating call

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Owners will be allowed to encourage their pet frogs with pleading, whistling and singing in the South African Frog Olympics next Saturday.

But hissing like a snake, imitating mating calls and lighting firecrackers are forbidden.

Imitating a mating cry "subjects the frog to moral cruelty and severe disappointment and is most strongly deprecated," the rules say.

Assessment base

B.C. returns to old system

The provincial government confirmed Monday that it is abandoning any attempt to bring assessments in B.C. up to 100 per cent of market value by 1975.

A statement issued by Premier Barrett, shortly after introduction of the amendments at Monday's session, said: "Technically speaking, this is not a return to the old system."

A special bill to amend the Assessment Act, passed last spring, was introduced in the Legislature for first reading late Monday afternoon. In effect, the bill suspends section 24, the clause requiring land and improvements to be assessed at actual value.

In turn, the amendment, when approved by the Legislature, means that assessments for 1975 will be frozen at the 1974 level.

B.C. Rail traffic stopped

VANCOUVER (UPI) — British Columbia Railway operations were partially shut down Monday after some members of the company's striking shopercraft unions set up picket lines.

About 85 of the 550 strikers from five unions began picketing the railway Sunday at Prince George, and other workers refused to cross the lines.

B.C. Rail passenger service between Vancouver and Prince George was also shut down.

The workers have been on strike since Friday, but no pickets were reported in other parts of the province, where the railway, owned by the provincial government, provides passenger and freight service.

The government's proposed rental legislation has succeeded only in bringing to the boil the mounting discontent among both landlord and tenant groups in Victoria and Vancouver.

Dolman told the Colonist: "It seems inevitable now that strike actions will be taken, which we deeply regret."

These "strike actions" could include landlords withholding vacant suites from the market and refusing to pay Hydr bills representing increases of more than 8 per cent.

Meanwhile, an incensed Bruce Yorke, B.C. Tenants Organization president, said his group would hold a news conference in Vancouver this morning after it had received

IRA woman bomber gets 12 life terms

WAKEFIELD, England (AP) — A 25-year-old English woman was convicted Monday of murdering 12 people by bombing an army bus last February.

Judith Teresa Ward, a member of the Irish Republican Army, was sentenced to 12 life prison sentences, to run concurrently, for the murders and 20 years in prison for causing the explosion.

Wakefield Crown Court also sentenced her to 10 years for bombing the National Defence College in Buckinghamshire and five years, to run concurrently, for bombing London's Euston train station.

She pleaded not guilty to all charges.

The slim, fair-haired woman grabbed the side of the wooden prisoner's dock as the verdicts were announced, but her expression remained unchanged as sentences were passed.

Sir George Waller, the justice, made no recommendation for a minimum time Miss Ward should remain in prison because "these offences are so heinous that no figure could be put on that would be appropriate to their gravity."

Sugar price raised again

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Sugar Refining Co. Monday announced an increase of $4.70 a hundredweight of sugar, the second increase within a week.

On Thursday, the company announced an increase of $3 a hundredweight, which brought the price of sugar to $58.70 from $55.

Bill Davies, general sales manager for the company, said panic buying in Europe, combined with low-yield beet harvests, is driving the price upward. He predicted massive buyer resistance all over the world if prices continue to rise.

Russia ordered up to 500,000 tons of sugar in the open world market Monday, posing the threat of another rise in the global price, sugar trade circles said.

B.C. Rail strike

asked strikers to return to work pending an inquiry by the provincial labor relations board, but the Prince George employees rejected the plea at a Sunday meeting.

"We are out until we get a settlement," a spokesman said.

The labor board is looking into an application by the Canadian Union of Transport Employees (CUTE) to represent members of three of the five unions. A decision is expected by the weekend.

A railway spokesman said the CUTE application makes the present strike illegal under articles of the B.C. labor code.

The contract between the unions and the company expired last week, and talks broke off shortly before that.

Pacific Press

News workers will hear offer

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Joint Council of Newspaper Unions has agreed to recommend acceptance of a contract offer from Pacific Press Ltd. to its membership, council co-chairman Dave McIntyre said Monday.

He said the council's six unions would meet separately to vote on the offer from Pacific Press, which produces the Sun and the Province.

McIntyre did not disclose details of the offer. The council's original request was for an increase of $3 an hour across-the-board in a two-year contract. The company earlier offered an increase in top categories of $1.10 an hour in one year, with another increase to be negotiated next year.

A union spokesman said Sunday that "economic action" would be taken if a settlement was not reached by 8 p.m. Monday.

Pacific Press said all 1,400 workers would be locked out if any of the six unions went on strike.

The six unions are the Vancouver Typographical Union; the Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild; Graphic Arts International Union; Stereotypers, Electrotypers and Platemakers Union; the Vancouver Mailers Union and the International Printing and Graphic Arts Union.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am taking birth control pills. The fifth day when I begin again my breasts start swelling and about 10 days later they become sore. They are so swollen and sore in the middle of the month that I have to wear some type of bra for support. What causes the swelling and soreness? — Mrs. P.A.

Hunt memo assailed White House 'fiasco'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prosecution lawyers jolted the Watergate cover-up trial Monday with the disclosure that they had obtained a copy of a Howard Hunt memorandum they thought had been destroyed.

Prosecutor James Neal said a copy of the 2½-page memorandum was obtained during the weekend from William Bittman, Hunt's former lawyer. Neal said that for 1½ years Bittman had denied he received the memo.

The memo introduced into evidence by Neal was headed "Review and Statement of Problem." It speaks of the Nixon administration keeping its commitments in behalf of the seven defendants in the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic party election headquarters in the Watergate building here.

The surprise disclosure prompted lawyers for two of the five defendants in the cover-up trial to move for a mistrial. They were denied.

"I am faced with a cover-up within a cover-up," said Jacob Stein, lawyer for Kenneth Parkinson, the man Hunt said he intended to receive the memo.

The memo said that the seven defendants had not wanted to break into the Democratic headquarters in the Watergate either on Memorial Day weekend of 1972 or the following June 17 because Democratic national chairman Lawrence O'Brien was rarely in his office.

"Objections were overruled and the attempt was loyally made," Hunt wrote. The memo said the defendants' sponsors "compounded the fiasco" by indecisiveness, failure to quash the initial investigation, permitting an FBI investigation of "unprecedented scope and vigor," permitting defendants to fall into the hands of "a paranoid judge" — a reference to presiding Judge John Sirica — failure to provide promised support funds, and "an apparent wash-hands attitude" now that the election has been won.

"The administration, however, remains deficient in living up to its commitments," the memo said. "These commitments were and are: 1. Financial support, 2. Legal defence fees, 3. Pardons, 4. Rehabilitation."

The memo also pointed out that the Watergate bugging was "only one of a number of highly illegal conspiracies engaged in by one or more of the defendants at the behest of senior White House officials."

Nixon back on his feet

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) —

Former president Richard Nixon got on his feet and took a few assisted steps around his hospital room Monday in an exercise that underlined the improvement of his condition since his brush with death almost a week ago.

The doctors permitted Nixon to begin the road back to convalescence although they were wary of complications including a small congestion of fluid in one lung.

10,000 flee floods

Raging floodwaters drove 10,000 persons from homes in Oklahoma during the weekend while the season's first major snowfall snarled traffic and knocked out power in north-west Kansas.

The western snowstorm also hampered search efforts for a missing plane and its two passengers in Utah.

Civil defense officials said weekend floodwaters caused more than $10 million in property damage in central and eastern Oklahoma and drove 10,000 persons from homes.

Two persons died in Oklahoma weather-related traffic accidents, but no other serious injuries were reported.

"We've got everything pretty well under control, but the water is up and coming up real fast," said a police dispatcher at Skiatook, Okla.

Eat less, affluent warned

ROME (AP) — A group of economists and food experts sounded on Monday what probably will emerge as the central theme of the World Food Conference: Americans and other affluent people had better eat less or face a confrontation with half a billion hungry people.

At the same time, the group suggested that countries of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries spread around their new wealth among the other Third World countries. They and the rich countries annually should invest $2½ billion each in poor countries, the group said.

"Societies do not survive long in moral isolation or human indifference, least of all on a planet made one by physical interdependence and a shared biosphere," the group said in a report issued on the eve of the 11-day conference.

"We do not believe that either the 'old rich' of the industrialized world or the 'new rich' within OPEC could live in peace and self-respect in a planet moving toward recurrent famine."

Headed by British economist Barbara Ward and including Nobel prize winner Norman Borlaug and former U.S. agriculture secretary Orville Freeman, the group met for three days to focus opinion on the world's food crisis. Its report is expected to have impact on delegates from Asia, Africa and Latin America, where most of the world's hungry live.

"Megadeaths from famine are not less terrible than the slaughter of war," the report said. "They require the same political effort and authority to hold them at bay."

Virtual siege for Kissinger visit

ROME (Reuters) — U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger, shielded by one of the biggest security screens ever mounted in Italy, held talks with Italian President Giovanni Leone on Monday night at the start of a 24-hour visit.

Rome, blasted by bombs in advance of Kissinger's visit, was virtually under siege as the United States diplomat flew in from Belgrade to an airport guarded by roadblocks and hundreds of police including sharpshooters and plainclothes officers.

Scores of police lined the route into the city Kissinger and his wife, Nancy, drove to their hotel, the roof of which, as well as those of neighboring buildings, bristled with security guards.

But the security measures did not prevent a powerful bomb from going off at the offices of the Daily American, a Rome-based English-language newspaper. No one was injured.

There were fears that Kissinger, who will address the United Nations World Food Conference today, may be the target of left-wing extremists protesting alleged U.S. interference in Italian affairs, and by neo-Fascist elements seeking to exploit the situation for their own ends.

New taxation policy?

THE FATHERS OF CONFEDERATION were a canny lot. In Parliament, it is not permissible to impute motives, especially personal ones. In accord with that principle, we will not suggest that the potential members of the first federal government had in mind making things more comfortable for themselves, but only that they had in mind a firm foundation for union when they considered the division of taxing powers.

The British North America Act gave to the Parliament of Canada the exclusive legislative authority for "the raising of money by any mode or system of taxation." It gave to the provincial legislatures, as an exclusive power, "Direct taxation within the province in order to the raising of a revenue for provincial purposes." It also gave the provinces, although this was a matter of small consequence at the time, exclusive power to make laws in regard to municipal institutions in the province.

The national government in this way was empowered to impose the least noticed, least painful taxes that could be devised, such as the import duties and excise taxes and the hidden federal sales tax, higher now by half than the highest provincial sales tax and levied at the manufacturers' level so that it forms part of the profit base on the way up to the consumer — who seldom if ever thinks about it. In fact the only tax imposed by the federal government that causes agitation among most citizens is only a temporary levy, adopted during the First World War, the income tax. And Ottawa takes pains to be sure the taxpayers know that it collects a large part of the income tax not for itself, but for the provinces.

The provinces, for their part, are stuck with direct taxes, and so, for instance, it is common to hear the salesperson making out the bill say, "That's $10, and 50 cents for Mr. Barrett."

Even so, the provincial governments have been cunning enough to reserve the least resented direct taxes to themselves and to have assigned mostly to their municipalities the raising of revenue by the most sharply felt of taxes — those paid annually on real property. Sales tax goes out in nickels and dimes, mainly. Gasoline tax is part of the price, almost forgotten. But a bill for $500 hurts.

Municipal taxpayers were led to believe that a New Democratic Party government would give them a better deal. After two years it has not been very evident.

But it is novel, and refreshing, to read of former municipal affairs minister Dan Campbell not only saying that there is a need for a new tax arrangement between senior levels of government and municipalities, but adding, "I make this admission: municipalities were not that well treated by our government."

If this admission is the start of a new Social Credit policy, the party may have made a great stride toward regaining power.

Making them stick

NOW THAT LOWER speed limits are in effect in the "drive" for fewer traffic fatalities, attention could well be turned to the other big menace, drinking drivers.

This is not to suggest that the provincial government's ordered slow-down can be left at that, though. There is enforcement. Many drivers will obey the new rules only if they are made to do so. Until more patrols are put on the road, the cut-back can be considered only a part-way measure towards an improved death-rate.

The same can be said, of course, about the drinking laws in regard to driving, and federal Justice Minister Otto Lang should be talking about putting more policemen on the watch in his current consideration of nation-wide compulsory breath-analysis testing.

He thinks Canada's impaired driving laws are losing their potency, and has a number of amendments to the Criminal Code in mind. The roadside breath test would discourage drinkers from driving, he agrees, but "it could inconvenience a lot of people who never drink."

This is quite so, but it wouldn't be nearly as "inconvenient" as having some slightly inebriated driver go wheeling through a red light and wipe you out.

On the manpower question, Mr. Lang might look to Norway and that country's treatment of the drinking driver. An article in the September issue of The Rotarian gives it a run-down.

Since 1926 Norwegian law has required a minimum prison sentence of three weeks for drivers found with a blood alcohol concentration of 0.05 per cent or more, and the article continues:

"Norwegian police have the right to stop any driver at any time to inspect the licence, and if the driver is believed to have taken a drink, she or he will be ordered to blow up a plastic balloon containing chemical crystals which will turn green upon contact with breath-alcohol.

"If that happens, the police officer escorts the driver to a doctor for a mandatory blood test. This blood test is sent for independent examination by six technicians and the finding goes back to the police."

It can be argued that this is no different than Canada, but wait: The spot-checking of motorists is a regular thing, so regular that in Oslo drivers expect to be stopped at least once a month.

This takes manpower which, for the Norwegians, is money well spent because detailed studies have proven, without a doubt, that their approach curtails drunken driving and produces fewer accidents.

As with the provincial government lowering speed limits, it is well for the federal government to suggest doubling the maximum fine for impaired driving to $2,000 — provided the enforcement side isn't ignored.

Priests denounce bishops for 'silence' on repression

By TIMOTHY ROSS
The London Observer, from Bogota

In a surprisingly harsh document sent to the Catholic Church's Synod of Bishops in Rome, 500 Colombian priests have accused their country's bishops of being "accomplices of the establishment" in the exploitation and repression of the poor.

The document, which contrasts the bishops' behaviour with their preaching and with the Gospels, has sharply widened the breach between what it calls the theologies of "submission" and of "liberation."

"When the poor peasants are arrested, tortured or murdered for doing no more than defending their most basic rights, the church authorities are silent . . . When these peasants make an anguished appeal for help they receive not a word in reply . . . The hierarchy is allied to the exploiters against the exploited, and in repayment the exploiters offer honours and decorations," it claims.

The rebellious 500 insist on the right of the church to intervene in temporal and political matters, citing the opposition of Jesus to some of the laws of his time, as well as the condemnation by American bishops of the Chilean military junta.

In the eight years since Father Camilo Torres left the priesthood in Colombia to become a guerrilla fighter (dying futilely in his first skirmish, but gaining instant status as a martyr and symbol of committed Christianity), the traditional and progressive wings of the Colombian church have been moving further and further apart. In 1969 the Archbishop of Bogota, Cardinal Anibal Munoz Duque, loudly proclaimed that the Colombian clergy had been infiltrated by Communists, as priests began openly leading demonstrations and protest meetings in poor districts.

As the letter of criticism has not been formally received by Cardinal Munoz he was unable to make any comment on it, but his secretary told me that it was the work of "a small group of resentful non-conformists, led by Father Ataurino Sepulveda, who is very aggressive and hides his aggression by claiming to be a defender of the poor. The document is distorted and offensive."

I found Father Sepulveda teaching two helpers to work a duplicating machine, a grey-haired, intense man in a very worn suit.

I had first seen him in a police station after his arrest for participating in a Good Friday squatting operation. It was not his only detention, for he works largely with landless peasants and shanty-town dwellers, and considers his Christian duty lies in direct political action and in teaching other priests to do the same.

"Until we can train and organize the proletariat to take power we cannot achieve a new and really Christian society," he said.

Myrdal draws attention to the fact that the Polish Jews who survived Nazi terror have already been forced to leave their country. Now it's the turn of the Jews in Russia. Should world opinion be thankful to the Russians for letting the Jews flee their country instead of liquidating them?

Sarcastically Mr. Myrdal proposes that the Mongols and Tartars should be resettled in the Ukraine to comply with the same racial logic that is being used regarding the Jews whom he noted settled in Eastern Europe before the Slav peoples to a large extent.

New Jewish policy attacked

By COLIN NARBROUGH
from Stockholm

The Soviet Union and the United States are aiming at a "final solution" to the Jewish problem with their latest agreement to exchange American wheat for Russian exit permits. This is the view of the leading Swedish social critic and writer, Jan Myrdal, author of Report from a Chinese Village on life in Communist China, and son of Nobel Prize winner Gunnar Myrdal.

The announcement that 60,000 Jews will be given permits to leave the Soviet Union each year in return for eased trading with the Americans, and an end to President Ford's ban on wheat exports to the Russians, was attacked by Myrdal in an article in the Stockholm daily Dagens Nyheter.

"Around the world this agreement is being praised as a victory for world opinion on human rights," he wrote. "It is a shameful hypocrisy. The political intrigue surrounding this barrier deal is just as dirty a business as what happened on Cyprus. This time the 'horses' are trying to bring about a final solution to the Jewish problem in Eastern Europe too."

ety. This is our political position, based on the evangelism of Christ. As in childbirth the mother's blood is spilled, so for a Christian Latin American society will blood have to be spilled."

Like Camilo Torres, Father Sepulveda is a sociologist, with two master's degrees and a doctorate, and is the author of an academic study of prostitution as well as such polemical books as The Sins of the Church. With 499 other priests, he has now become responsible for the most aggressively radical wedge yet driven between the two halves of Colombian Catholicism.

Trudeau on NATO

A fine twist to 'chutzpa'

By LUBOR J. ZINK from Ottawa

I suppose you're all familiar with the story of the boy who killed his parents and then demanded leniency on the grounds of being an orphan.

The story is used to convey some of the meaning of the untranslatable Yiddish expression "chutzpa." Outrageous insolence and unmitigated gall are only two of the basic ingredients of that word whose rich flavor defies description in any language.

The other day, Prime Minister Trudeau gave a fine political and diplomatic twist to "chutzpa."

Talking to NATO council delegates in Brussels, the PM said that much as he and his government respected and wanted the alliance to remain intact, Canada would find it difficult to maintain her present contribution if other members were to reduce theirs.

This, with a straight face, from a man who unilaterally cut Canada's participation in collective defence in Europe by half, the moment he had a chance to do so and who has been steadily decimating Canada's armed forces. Moreover, it's no secret — certainly not at NATO headquarters — that Trudeau wanted to pull Canada out of the alliance completely and was temporarily restrained only by strong opposition within the party he chose (after calling it "a bunch of idiots" in Pearson days) as his instrument of power.

Having first made it difficult for the governments of NATO countries less affluent than Canada not to emulate his unilateral drastic cut in contribution to collective defence, Trudeau now pretends to be facing an untenable position should the others give some ground to the pressures he had bolstered. That's chutzpa.

Actually, Trudeau's NATO spiel goes beyond the performance of the poor orphan who killed his parents. He not only pleads innocence but pretends to be the victim of a trend he got rolling when it seemed that de Gaulle's initial push wouldn't be enough.

This outstanding Trudeau feat passed almost unnoticed because the PM's "exploratory trade talks" with Common Market officials were deemed to be of far greater interest particularly when the U.K. joined the Common Market and official Ottawa showed little interest in the EEC as a whole.

When U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger started pushing for a new Atlantic Charter that would reflect the multifaceted (and chiefly economic) changes in the core of the Western Alliance since the Second World War, Canada was so far adrift from her historically closest friends on both sides of the Atlantic that neither Western Europe nor the United States would consider us a negotiating partner. In short, we were, practically isolated.

Not quite dead

From the Winnipeg Free Press

Railway buffs must have thrilled the other day, and remembered more exciting times, when CP Rail put together what is believed to be the longest train ever assembled in Canada and sent it on a green light schedule from Moose Jaw through to the Lakehead loaded with Prairie wheat for the terminal elevators.

The train was two-and-a-half miles long, consisting of about 250 cars. It was powered by seven diesel units, four up front, three about three-quarters of the way back, operated from the front by remote control. It was part of an experiment to increase the volume of goods shipped out of the West.

Probably few people saw this monster — other than motorists held up at level crossings and who may have had their own views of two-and-a-half mile trains. But certainly it raised memories of the days when the CPR flyers, hauled by Hudson locomotives, were part of Canadian life; and of those years when the express "silk" trains made record runs from the West Coast ports to Eastern Canada.

Perhaps the romance of railroading isn't quite dead after all.

Ottawa Offset

A government plot

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

Conservative MP Marcel Lambert

Where have the Liberals hidden former Conservative Prime Ministers Arthur Meighen and Richard Bedford Bennett?

The man who years later followed in their party leadership footsteps, former Prime Minister Diefenbaker, wants to know — is asking the government — getting no answers — and charging it is all a "plot of Liberal concealment," successfully laid to keep their statues secreted from public view.

Dief notes that the Liberals managed to put up a statue of "one of their own," former prime Minister Mackenzie King who came along after both Mr. Meighen and Mr. Bennett.

Specifically he is demanding, on the Commons order paper, answers to these questions:

● On what dates were these statues of Meighen and Bennett completed?

● Where are they being stored?

● For what reason have they not been placed (along with Mr. King who followed after their time) on Parliament Hill?

Silence from the Liberal cabinet benches irritated him to the point last week that he raised the question as a point of order.

"I understand," he told the House, "that for several years these statues have been in storage . . . but it is impossible, apparently, to discover why or where."

He lamented that he had been pursuing the matter for weeks, but if the Liberals thought they could discourage him with non-answers, they were mistaken — for, as he reminded the Commons, he was well aware, as they must be too, that "the scriptural admonition, 'seek and ye shall find' eventually must bring results."

A so-called "secret source" in the Privy Council office, unofficially has let Diefenbaker's aides know that the reason for concealment of the two statues is what is described as "their uncanny look-alike qualities."

The Meighen statue, it was leaked to Dief's people by the prime minister's office, "looks too much like Robert Stanfield."

And Richard Bennett in stone has an "unbelievable resemblance to West Edmonton

To camouflage the motivation of the damage he was causing, Trudeau began to exploit the latest combination of left-wing anti-Americanism and nationalistic tantrums by talking about economic, cultural, political and even military perils of life next to the U.S. elephant, and about the need for chumming up with the U.S.S.R. and China to provide counter-balance.

This was in the blossoming season of the detente illusions and before the Arab friends of Moscow put the oil squeeze on the western world. The latter, though not hitting Canada directly, had nevertheless created problems not provided for in Trudeau's pre-conceived ideas.

Grappling with the unexpected now seems to require temporary extension of the balancing argument to Western Europe. Not because Trudeau's ideological distaste for the Common Market has disappeared, but because the semblance of negotiations of some special deal with it promises to contain the spread of politically worrisome uneasiness about the future of our economy.

If anything, the manoeuvre should prompt a closer scrutiny of what Trudeau is after. For, while less dazzling in form, his alleged mending of fences with the Common Market is no different in substance from his NATO deception. To call his bag of tricks a "bag of fog," as Opposition leader Stanfield did, is a bit naive and misleading.

The Jervis Bay, a 14,164-ton liner converted for war, with eight six-inch guns, was in charge of a North Atlantic convoy of 37 ships 30 years ago — in 1940 — when attacked by the German pocket battleship Admiral Scheer. Ignoring odds, Capt. Fogarty Fegen steered straight for the enemy until all guns were knocked out and the Jervis Bay sank. Only 65 of a crew of 255 were saved.

The sacrifice of the Jervis Bay enabled all but four of the unarmed freighters to escape. Capt. Fegen was posthumously awarded the Victoria Cross.

In your opinion...

Curb human reproduction!

Perhaps it is time people realized that certain freedoms often considered unassailable must be forsaken to ensure survival. One of these is the right to reproduce.

The human rights advocates will rise in anger at the mere mention of this possible infringement on human dignity; yet the restriction of reproduction by the state should be granted at least some unbiased consideration. As the world population passes four billion, increasing at 200,000 persons a day, does it not seem suicidal to continue of the present course?

As Mrs. Lois Gardner in her letter (Colonist, Oct. 20) tried to explain, just feeding these starving people does not alleviate the problem at all. It only postpones it.

The famed green revolution, a product of the biologists' discovery of certain hybrid strains of grain and the chemists' development of fertilizers and persistent insecticides, has actually done the human race a disfavor.

For a while it was considered feasible that the developing nations would eventually be self-sufficient in food production. But this has not come to pass. The revolution resulted only in an inflated population in these areas, which kept one step ahead of food production and made the hoped for surpluses impossible.

Now, because of the sudden increase in the costs of petroleum-based fertilizers, because of the concern about misuse of insecticides and because of the evolution of diseases which attack the genetically identical crops, the green revolution has collapsed. We are left with a ballooned population.

It is not possible to feed these extra mouths, and thus the gloomy forecasts of mass starvation. If the industrialized nations had had the foresight to integrate the technology of the green revolution with population control aid before passing it on to the developing nations, we would probably not be in this position.

Let's not make the same mistake twice. Maintaining this population at even a subsistence level by increasing food support only encourages its continued expansion. If we supply aid on the condition that population control measures are enforced we might be able to stop a disaster.

People can no longer expect that the luxury of unrestricted reproduction will be granted by society. This applies throughout this crowded world. In the future we will have the right to breed, it will be a privilege.

'Let's stop all this nonsense'

I have had it! I am sick of watching moronic farmers killing their stock because they only get 42 cents per pound for them whilst I pay $1.40 or more for the same stock — cut up mark you, but almost four times as much as they get for it live.

I am sick of hearing about all those eggs going bad because no one bothered to do the job they are paid to do.

I am sick of hearing that the federal government is removing a milk subsidy of two cents per quart and the dairies raise the price four cents a quart with the approval of the Milk Marketing Board.

I am sick of being told by cabinet ministers that I should use substitutes for fresh meat, eggs and milk in order that I might exist on the magnificent old age pension of $117 per month.

I am sick of hearing about the professional beggars starving in Asia; they were starving in my grandparents' day. Now there are twice as many and all we hear is help for the love of Allah, etc.

I don't happen to love Allah or any of his friends and suggest it is time we stopped pouring millions down the drain in food, grain, etc. It hardly ever seems to reach the needy, who go on procreating and starving just the same.

Let us stop all this nonsense. Charity begins at home.

Sell the grain at prices our farmers can afford, keep our prices of milk, eggs, meat down where they belong and inflation will stop just like that and our cost of living will come down.

Our pensioners won't be expected to fade away into the woodwork and the starving beggars of Asia will still be holding out their hands in 50 years' time, as before.

Then we can help them for by then they should have reduced their population by at least 50 per cent.

Doubtless this will raise screams of anguish from the many who live off our charity but they will have to scratch for a living instead of keeping up their birthrate, as they are too hungry to work.

Barrett wrong

Mining taxes greater

Premier Barrett stated the other day that manufacturing paid more taxes than mining. How can this be when:

● The corporate income tax rate for mining is 48 per cent and for manufacturing 40 per cent?

● Manufacturers don't have to pay royalties like mining companies do?

● Manufacturers don't face a special tax like the mining tax?

● Manufacturers can write off their new plant and equipment in two years whereas mining companies are only allowed to depreciate their assets at rates more in line with their useful life?

Yes, there was a day when the mining industry got breaks that other industries didn't. But that day is past. Listen to what Price Waterhouse had to say in its September 1974 publication Winds of Change:

"The mining industry has lost the benefits of long standing tax incentives at low rates and has become the most heavily taxed section in the Canadian economy."

Nowadays it is the manufacturer and not the miner who gets the breaks. And — British Columbians please note — the typical manufacturer is in eastern Canada, not B.C.

More than that, the typical manufacturer charges more (20 per cent) because he is protected by import duties. He gets a further 10 per cent preference when governments buy from him. And now he is getting western oil at half the world price.

No, Mr. Barrett, I don't feel sorry for our manufacturing friends in eastern Canada. It's our mining industry that I am worried about.

How about Indochina?

Ideally, it might be difficult to defend those who would condemn the British Columbia government for its humane thinking in showing its disapproval of apartheid by removing from its shelves the products of South Africa. However, the relativity of this action in the context of current history, poses another question.

Peasants and simple villagers of Indochina have been subjected to bombing and being napalmed by the forces of a nation far beyond its boundaries. Apartheid appears to mean segregation by race.

Now, is segregation a worse fate than having one's home destroyed, being killed outright or being torn to pieces by shrapnel, or burned alive with napalm? For these terrible crimes no sanctions were imposed against the nation which perpetrated them.

Why then the concern for apartheid? At least it's victims walk around with all their limbs, without having their eyes torn out or skin burned off. The victims of apartheid will one day retaliate, the crippled peasants of Indochina will never be able to do so.

Will some learned person kindly explain to this ex-farmhand from the backwoods, the anomaly created by this imposition of sanctions in one case and not the other?

B.C. action harms Cape Colored

Ban injures oppressed

Few ideological gestures could be more calculated to have the opposite of their intended effect than the B.C. Liquor Administration's decision to cease stocking South African wines.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald is evidently, though inexcusably, unaware that any impact of this will be felt most by the 100,000 Cape Colored people who constitute over 80 per cent of the total labor force supported by the industry's whole chain of production, from vineyard to winery, distillery, bottling and casking.

Since the phoning of the first vines by Dutch and Huguenot pioneers 300 years ago, viticulture and its attendant activities have become a traditional and exclusive field of employment of these people of mixed race, the products of early miscegenation.

But although they share the disabilities of all non-whites in South Africa under the harsh structure of apartheid, they do not, like the blacks, have any tribal homeland, any ethnic refuge from unemployment.

For them, with no alternative skills and no welfare, the poverty, degradation and crime of the shanty townships on the fringe of the white areas is the only alternative when, with their jobs, they lose not only their wages but the payments in kind of housing and rations and the community environment that gives some degree of dignity and security to their life-style.

They will take a wry view of a misguided foreign "signal of sympathy" that threatens to deprive them even of these precious aspects of their restricted lives.

By what must seem a paradox, these people would actually be best helped by increased support of the Cape wine industry, for its growth would increase the bargaining-power of their labor in the South-African economy.

Researchers discount claim for Vitamin C

Do large doses of Vitamin C prevent colds? Many people think so, including some respected scientists. But The Medical Letter, an authoritative publication for doctors, says a review of recent clinical studies indicates that substantial amounts of Vitamin C do not prevent colds.

And evidence suggesting that the vitamin might reduce the severity or duration of colds is not convincing," the nonprofit publication said in a recent issue.

The controversy started four years ago when a book by chemist Linus Pauling, two-time Nobel Prize winner, recommended massive doses of Vitamin C to combat the common cold.

By AL ROSSITER
from Washington

to see if the vitamin would control or prevent colds. The effects of large doses of Vitamin C were compared with those of dummy pills with neither the researchers nor the subjects knowing who was getting the vitamin.

A Canadian study of 818 volunteers in 1972 found that the only significant difference between the vitamin group and the dummy pill group was that those receiving Vitamin

C who caught colds spent less time confined to the house.

A larger, more recent study by the same Canadian researchers found that those taking Vitamin C caught just as many colds, and they were just as severe as those on the dummy pill. And the amount of Vitamin C taken did not seem to make any difference.

The Medical Letter said a small study of 21 adults in the United States observed the results after a cold virus was placed in their nasal passages. All 11 people taking Vitamin C in large doses caught colds as did all 10 taking a dummy pill.

A study reported in January of 666 Indian children at a boarding school in Arizona found that those receiving Vitamin C had fewer days of sickness from respiratory infections. But sick days from nonrespiratory illness also were about 30 per cent less in children taking Vitamin C and the Medical Letter said a statistical analysis of these results showed no consistent effect due to the vitamin.

Another trial, in Dublin, produced somewhat confusing results with no firm evidence that the vitamin prevented colds or lessened their severity. The Medical Letter said.

Vitamin C is ascorbic acid and humans get it from fresh vegetables and fruits, particularly citrus fruits. The lack of the vitamin was responsible for scurvy, the scourge of seamen confined to sailing ships on long voyages without fresh foods.

The U.S. National Research Council recommends daily Vitamin C intake levels of between 30 and 60 milligrams for most people. The average diet is said to provide North Americans with enough of the vitamin.

The doses that have been studied in anti-cold tests have ranged from 200 mg to up to two grams or more per day. Dr. Philip White, director of nutrition for the American Medical Association, says most physicians advise against such massive doses because they don't know if there are any long-term effects of overdoses.

Last laughs today!

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK, from Washington

Most political campaigns produce their share of oddball, zany episodes, but 1974 may go down as a vintage year in the U.S. The year, in fact, appears to be the one in which some of the most sedate politicians suddenly came down with attacks of multiple left feet, which they busily sought to stuff in their own mouths.

Consider, for example, the dignified senior senator from Colorado, Republican Peter Dinkins. In the fight of his political life with Democrat Gary Hart, Dinkins unaccountably declared at a public forum on world food problems that "Ugandans would rather eat their own people than they would feed."

Embarrassing, but not nearly as dangerous as Mayor Ralph Perk's fall from dignity. Running against Democrat John Glenn for the senate in Ohio, the Cleveland mayor undertook to handle a blowtorch at one campaign stop — and promptly set his own hair on fire.

Democrats had their problems, too. Rep. Wilbur Mills, the picture of a sedate banker-type, found himself back home in Arkansas trying to explain how U.S. park police happened to find him in the wee hours in the company of a former stripteasee called Fanne Foxe, the Argentine firecracker, in an auto travelling without lights near the tidal basin in Washington.

But Don Moody had a different problem — his opponent, Moody and Beverley Harrell, the madam of a legal Nevada bordello, were the top candidates in a Democratic primary for a state legislative seat. Moody is a seasoned public official and politician, but he just couldn't seem to attract any attention during the runoff campaign.

"The press always portray her as a good guy and me as a bad guy," he complained to a reporter. "It's hard to figure out why."

Back at the Dominion campaign, more trouble. First, some confused campaign volunteer sent literature boosting the senator's re-election bid to a Democrat. Second, he mailed it in one of the senator's "franked" — postage free — envelopes.

But the worst blow came late in the campaign. Mrs. Kenneth Lloyd announced formation of a committee to support Hart against Dinkins. Of course, it's a free country, but Mrs. Lloyd is the wife of Dinkins's campaign manager.

The strangest political happening of the campaign?

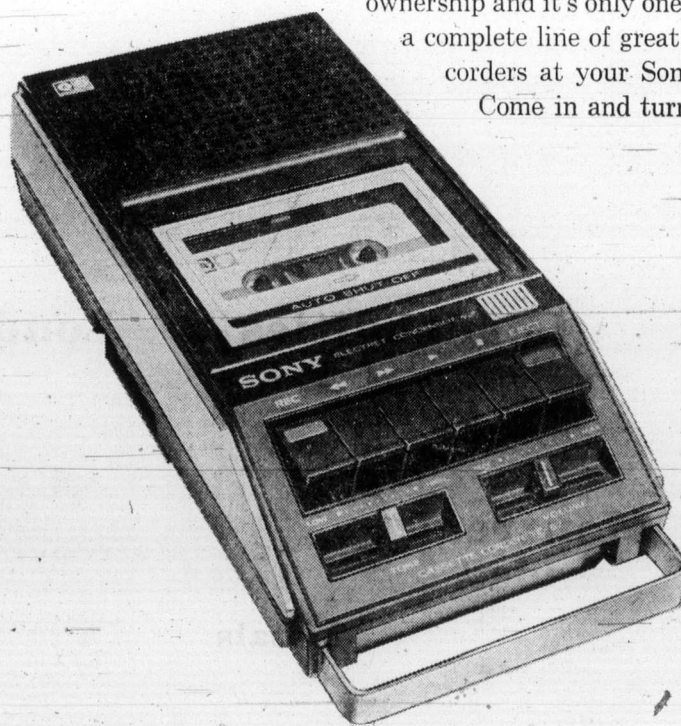

Today's results will be better testimony to its effects, but one possibility was the performance of President Gerald Ford, who announced a program of amnesty for Vietnam draft dodgers and deserters, granted a pardon to Richard Nixon before the ex-president was charged with anything, proposed a five per cent tax increase, lost more than 20 points of popularity in the national polls and then went out campaigning for Republican candidates.

The boom in Canada's banking business continues unabated. The latest version of Factbook, the Canadian Bankers' Association handbook, points that up in very large numbers this week.

The association states that by far the largest item of operating expense is the interest paid on deposits and bank debentures which, in 1973, reached more than $2.87 billion.

Banks' income, which comes primarily from interest on loans and securities and from exchange, commission and service charges, totalled $5.2 billion in the same year.

Over the 10-year period beginning in 1963, the chartered banks obtained 86 to 91 per cent of their total revenue from loans and securities, and only about 9 to 14 per cent from service charges, commissions and fees.

More and more Canadians are eschewing the buried tomato can in the back garden and putting their savings into the banks. Factbook states that the number of individual saving accounts rose by 1.75 million in the year ended April 30, 1974.

There were 19,439,200 personal saving accounts on that date, which represents a 65-per cent increase in a decade that saw the population grow by 18 per cent.

Total amount in savings was $27.1 billion for an average size of account of $1,395. This represents about 55 per cent of total Canadian deposits (excluding those of the federal government).

We're spending it too. Right here in the Victoria area debits to individual bank accounts of all kinds have reached $13.3 billion in the first nine months of 1974—about $560 million more than all of 1973. The total to Sept. 30 is more than double the total at the same time just three years ago.

The energy problems of last winter hit Hawaii about as hard as anywhere—especially so in that the oil and gasoline must be imported. One company that has responded to the challenge was C. Brewer and Co. Ltd., one of the state's biggest employers and businesses. Its principal activities are agricultural production and marketing land development and leisure time in Hawaii and continental U.S.

The company spokesman said that they cut down everywhere. By using an allocation system for gasoline, for instance, the company effected a 40 per cent decrease in usage over 1973.

Although the whole year's figures aren't in, the firm expects to save 200,000 gallons of diesel fuel, 150,000 gallons of gasoline and 10,000 or more gallons of lubricants.

CATALYTIC CONVERTERS for the 1975 cars that carry them have added about $150 to the total cost, according to car makers of North America. However, in Japan, the Japanese Automobile Federation is working on a system that accomplishes the same thing which will cost about 60 cents to install and .3 to half a cent to refill. The new method involved use of a solution of water and organic lead that is blown into the engine with the unleaded gasoline providing the essential lubricant which safeguards existing motors from a variety of faults. . . . Something exotic for Christmas? How about an electronically remote-controlled stereo car at a list price of $1,100? Such an item has been introduced in Canada by the Blaupunkt division of Robert Bosch (Canada) Ltd.

Cartel's purse fatter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The oil producers' cartel increased its monetary reserves by at least $25 billion in the last year, accumulating 19 per cent of the world total, the International Monetary Fund (IMF) says.

The IMF released figures on the weekend showing the cartel's monetary reserves reached a total of more than $38 billion last year. At the end of September, 1973, the cartel's reserves made up only 7 per cent of the world total.

Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil producer, had accumulated $11.5 billion in reserves by the end of September, moving into fourth place behind West Germany, the United States and Japan, the IMF reported.

Saudi Arabia had only $4 billion in reserves a year ago and raised 13th.

Meanwhile, the industrial nations, contending with a four-fold increase in the price of oil, ran a combined deficit in the second quarter of 1974 at the rate of $51 billion, compared with an annual rate of $41 billion in the first quarter and only $10 billion in the second quarter of 1973, the IMF said.

Rates down

NEW YORK (AP) — Several large U.S. commercial banks reduced their prime lending rates Monday for the fourth consecutive week.

Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, First National Bank of Chicago and American National Bank and Trust Co. of Chicago matched the industry low rate of 10.75 per cent posted last Friday by First National City Bank of New York, the second largest bank in the United States. All four banks cut their prime rates one-quarter point from 11 per cent.

Banks moving down to 11 per cent Monday included Chemical Bank of New York, Bankers Trust Co. of New York, National Bank of Detroit, National City Bank of Cleveland and Harris Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago.

B.C.'s pulp company having big year

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian Cellulose Company Ltd. reports net earnings for the three months ended Sept. 30 of $14.3 million or $1.17 a share after application of a tax loss credit.

This compares with net earnings of $44,000 or 4 cents a share for the same period in 1973, after application of the credit.

President Ronald Gross said Monday in a news release that before application of the extraordinary credit the company's third-quarter earnings were $8.1 million or 66 cents a share. The credit relates to an income tax reduction on application of the prior years' losses.

CanCel is controlled by the British Columbia government, which owns more than 70 per cent of the shares.

Gross said net earnings, with the credit, were $36.1 million or $2.96 a share for the first nine months of 1974 compared with earnings of $6.2 million or 51 cents a share for the corresponding period in 1973.

Reynolds, Spectrum in final

Reynolds Roadrunners and Spectrum will meet Friday at Royal Athletic Park for the Colonist Cup, emblematic of playoff supremacy in the Victoria inter-high school soccer league.

League-champion Reynolds earned a berth in the final with a come-from-behind 3-2 win over Oak Bay Bays, Monday.

day, while Spectrum posted a 4-2 decision over Victoria High Tyes in the second half of the doubleheader at Royal Athletic Park. A crowd of 1055 watched the action on the rain-soaked pitch. Striker Greg Booth played an outstanding game for Reynolds and notched the winning goal with a blistering drive from about 30 yards with only four minutes to play.

Booth, who netted 20 goals in 16 regular-season games, had opened the scoring after only five minutes but the Roadrunners fell behind when Ed Jackson scored at 15 minutes and Peter Zachary scored directly from a corner kick shortly after the interval.

Reynolds struggled to get the equalizer and, after switching from a 4-2-4 formation to a 3-2-5 to get more striking power, were rewarded when Drew Finerty tallied at 76 minutes.

In the second game, Spectrum jumped to a 3-0 lead on goals by Dan Hood, Doug Vincent and Wayne Reeves before Ron McGovern got one back for the Tyes, three minutes from halftime.

Dave Shepherd put Spectrum three goals up on the first series of the second half and McGovern scored his second goal, at the 75-minute mark, to complete the scoring.

In league play this season, Reynolds scored a pair of 2-1 victories over Spectrum. The Spectrum victory also gave the new school the second Victoria berth in the B.C. high school playoffs.

Spectrum and Victoria High finished the regular season tied with 25 points, four behind the front-running Roadrunners, who earned the first spot.

Beleaguered Stars suffer through dearth of goals

Minnesota North Stars appear to have fallen on evil days.

Blues name new coach

ST. LOUIS—Garry Young, who two seasons ago was fired by California Golden Seals, has been named coach of St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League.

Young replaces Lou Angotti, who resigned last week as the Blues' head coach after a 2-5-2 record. Young will take over his new duties tonight for a game against Los Angeles Kings.

Continuing a skid which started last season, when they slipped all the way to seventh place to miss the playoffs after finishing second and third in the two previous seasons, the North Stars took two solid beatings on the weekend.

They were never in it Monday night in Montreal, where Canadiens eased to a 6-1 win, but that wasn't as bad as it was Sunday night in Boston, where the Bruins had a 10-1 romp over the embattled Minnesotans.

Lack of scoring has been the biggest trouble for the North Stars, who are the lowest scoring team in the National Hockey League with only 20 goals from their 11 starts. They got 12 of them in the three games which brought them a tie and their two victories, they've been shut out twice and held to one goal in four games.

Steve Shutt, the 22-year-old leftwinger who looked so good last spring in the Stanley Cup playdowns and then reported to training camp packing excess weight, indicated he is finally in condition by leading Canadiens with two goals and an assist.

Canadiens were only 1-0 after the first period, but they outshot the North Stars by 33-14 in the final 40 minutes.

In Sunday's feature games, Philadelphia Flyers brought the ambitious New York Islanders up short with a 3-1 win, and Buffalo Sabres continued their advance by taking New York Rangers, 4-3.

Victory for the Stanley Cup champions was their fourth in a row and moved them ahead of the Islanders, who had their unbeaten streak ended at six games.

Sabres, now leading the Adams Division by three points, also won their fourth in a row. And Chicago Black Hawks ran their unbeaten streak to eight games, longest of the season, by playing to a 3-3 tie with Pittsburgh Penguins.

Another dull Monday night follows exciting NFL Sunday

Monday night follows an increasingly familiar National Football League story—a dull game which failed to match interesting Sunday play.

Los Angeles Rams, closing in on a division championship, won on Monday, but it was only by 15-13 over San Francisco 49ers. It was the third win for the Rams since Jim Harris became their regular quarterback, but they managed it with a tough defense.

San Francisco managed only one touchdown and got two long field goals from ex-Ram Bruce Gossett.

a three-game margin over the 49ers and New Orleans Saints. Sunday's main action was centered in Dallas, where the Cowboys handed St. Louis Cardinals their first defeat, and in Foxboro, Mass., where New England Patriots and Buffalo Bills duplicated their spectacular first meeting of the year.

In Dallas, where a defeat would almost certainly have doomed the Cowboys as far as a playoff spot is concerned, they won, 17-14, when Efren Herrera kicked a 20-yard field goal with only four seconds remaining.

Herrera's successful kick reversed what had been the usual order of things this season—the Cardinals had won five of their first seven vic-

Speaking briefly

Foreman wants title fight probe

PARIS (AP)—George Foreman said Monday he will make official appeals to the World Boxing Council and World Boxing Association to investigate what he calls ring irregularities in his world heavyweight title fight against Muhammad Ali.

Ali became only the second heavyweight in boxing history to regain the title, knocking out Foreman in the eighth round of their scheduled 15-round bout at Kinshasa, Zaire, early Wednesday.

"I don't expect and I'm not asking for anyone to give me my title back," Foreman said at a news conference. "But I feel there should be a report and a probe into what happened."

Foreman insisted that Ali's tactics were based on knowing about the ring conditions beforehand, that the canvas would be "soft as mud" and "the ropes loose enough to let him sit down and get out of the way."

Foreman said he did not see how the boxing governing bodies could ignore eyewitness reports that Ali's seconds tampered with the ropes during the fight.

Wade's nose patched up

QUARTERBACK Sonny Wade of Montreal Alouettes underwent surgery Monday to repair a broken nose suffered during Saturday's Eastern Football Conference game against Ottawa Rough Riders.

Centre Wayne Conrad (neck injury), quarterback Jimmy Jones (bruised ribs) and defensive-back Dickie Harris (pulled muscle in side) are other Alouettes ailing but the latter two, at least, are expected to be able to practice later this week.

Bruce A. Norris, owner of Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League is to be released from hospital in Fort Lauderdale, where he has undergone treatment for injuries suffered in an Oct. 23 car accident. He suffered 11 broken ribs and underwent surgery for removal of a torn cartilage in his left knee and is expected to be out of action six to eight weeks.

Evergreen spiel

Braunstein wins

VANCOUVER — A Winnipeg rink skipped by Terry Braunstein is the latest winner of the Evergreen Tournament of Champions.

Braunstein, who just missed skipping a high school rink to Canadian men's championship in Victoria in 1958, won the $5,000 first prize on Monday night by defeating started with an 8-3 romp over Ron Northcott of Calgary and then slipped past Trout 8-5.

Kevin Smale of Prince George, 7-4. The Winnipeg rink, which had Don Wiles at third and George Boughey and Stuart Manness on the front end, qualified for the eight-rink final out of "B" event, defeating John Trout of Edmonton, 3-1, in a tense Sunday game.

On Monday, Braunstein

Smale, a former B.C. champion, reached his best form in the late going. With Pete Sherba back as vice-skip and Ernie Stradlin and Ed Gladwin on the front end, Smale just made it into the eight-rink final.

He took the long road, coming out of "C" event and just making it by scoring three on the final end to edge Gary Ross of Winnipeg, 6-5. In the championship playoff, Smale mastered two good ones. He started by handing Jack Tucker, the former B.C. champion now playing out of Hane, his first defeat, 8-4. Then he bested defending champion George Kirk of Calgary, 7-4.

Jim Armstrong, the former provincial schoolboy champion from Victoria who was the second rink to qualify out of "A" event, went down to his first loss when he was beaten, 5-4, by Trout in the first round of championship play.

Trout was one down coming home, but eased up to Armstrong's last rack for the winning point.

Smale won $3,000 of the $14,000 pot for finishing second and Fink, who defeated Trout, 12-6, took down third prize of $2,000. Trout won $1,200 and Tucker, 4-3, Armstrong, Don Garratt of Calgary and Northcott all received $700 for qualifying for the championship playoff.

ties by scoring in the last seconds, and the Cowboys had been beaten three times by last-second field goals.

In Foxboro, the Bills finally triumphed, 29-28, to hand the Patriots only their second loss of the season. The other one in Buffalo last month, the Bills barely making it, 30-28.

John Leypoldt, who opened the scoring with a 46-yard field goal and closed it with a 47-yard three-pointer, and had a 20-yarder in between, provided the Bills with the key points.

Stumpy Mack Herron again had a great game for the Patriots. He scored three touchdowns, going over once on a two-yard run and accepting 43 and 20-yard passes from Jim Plunkett. Herron contributed 146 yards from scrimmage, taking four passes for 77 yards and getting 69 yards out of 17 carries.

Sunday also provided three more of the upsets which have become almost commonplace this season.

Houston Oilers got a touchdown with less than two minutes left to take New York Jets, 27-22; Craig Morton quarterbacked New York Giants to a 33-27 win over Kansas City Chiefs; and San Diego Chargers nipped Cleveland Browns, 30-25, when Ray Werschling got a 40-yard field goal 55 seconds from time.

Ticats top Argos for playoff berth

Hamilton Tiger-Cats, who missed out last season, became an Eastern Football Conference playoff club with a 26-24 victory over Toronto Argonauts.

Victory, forged by an early start before 32,790 Hamilton fans, enabled the Ticats to finish third. They wound up in a point tie with Ottawa, but lost the home-field advantage for next Sunday's semi-final because they were outscored, 83-73, while compiling a 2-2 record against the Rough Riders this season.

Argonauts, a second-place club last year, finished out of it, not quite able to overcome turnovers which got Hamilton a 17-0 first-quarter lead. Ticats came up with four interceptions and recovered the ball three times after Toronto fumbles. Toronto quarterback Mike Rae had his first two passes picked off by the Ticats, and his teammates fumbled twice in the first 10 minutes.

Argos, who led most of the statistics except the score, made a fourth-quarter rally which brought two touchdowns after Ticats had assumed a 26-10 lead. But only 46 seconds remained after the last major score, and Argos didn't regain possession.

In Winnipeg Sunday, the Blue Bombers and Calgary Stampeders closed out the 1974 Canadian Football League schedule before only 16,569 fans, the Bombers winning, 19-9, to create a third-place tie with B.C. Lions.

Both clubs won eight games, but three of the B.C. victories came at the expense of the Bombers. That made the Lions the third playoff club, and they will be in Regina Sunday to play Saskatchewan Roughriders in the Western Conference semi-final.

Conference finals are both on Sunday, Nov. 17, and the Grey Cup game, in Vancouver this year, is on the following Sunday, Nov. 24.

Tide trial Wednesday

Victoria Crimson Tide, the representative team of the Victoria Rugby Union, will be selected following an inter-squad game Wednesday at Royal Athletic Park. Game time is 7 p.m.

Twenty-three players will be named to the team which will play host to University of B.C. Thunderbirds, Nov. 11, in the opening game of the McKechnie Cup competition, starting at 2:30 p.m. on Macdonald Park.

Hornets, Invaders reach B.C. finals

Oak Bay Invaders and Saanich Hornets moved closer to B.C. football championships on the weekend by scoring convincing victories.

Invaders won the Vancouver Island bantam title with a 22-0 win over North Island Warriors at Centennial Stadium while, in Courtenay, Hornets rolled to a 41-12 decision over the hometown Cougars to earn the Island junior bantam crown.

Invaders will meet Vancouver Renfrew on Sunday at Royal Athletic Park in a B.C. semi-final while the Hornets will play a Vancouver-area club in the B.C. junior bantam semi-finals.

The junior bantam game is scheduled for 12 noon with the bantam game to follow at 2 p.m.

On Sunday, Terry Cook scored two touchdowns to lead the Invaders. Ross Cooper scored a touchdown, Lars Fenske booted three conversions, and Ken Martin was credited with a single to complete the scoring.

At Courtenay, Bill Haire scored three touchdowns for the Hornets and Joey Fletcher scored a pair of six-pointers and booted five conversions. Darryl Pettinger completed the Saanich scoring with a touchdown.

Island XVs trip Alberta sides

Vancouver Island teams scored victories Sunday in a pair of exhibition matches against touring Alberta squads.

In an under-19 game, the Island XV edged to a 9-6 win while in an under-23 clash, the Island had little difficulty in rolling to a 46-10 decision. Both matches were played at Macdonald Park.

Jeff Young accounted for the Island points in the first match, booting a penalty goal, scoring a try and the conversion. Rob Hunter kicked two penalty goals for the visitors.

Steve Cowie, Don MacLaren and Casey Walt each scored two tries for the Island under-23s. Steve Thompson, Rob Carere, Chris Mills and Mike Smith also scored tries. Smith kicked two penalty goals and Mills booted one.

John Carruthers and Larry Jones scored tries for Alberta and Greg Gomis kicked a penalty goal.

Sunday scored in Victoria Rugby Union matches:

THIRD DIVISION
Pries: Norm Reader, try: Danny Pries, 2 conversions: CASTAWAYS (14).

Island athletes honored

VANCOUVER — Two Vancouver Island athletes earned honors at the B.C. Track and Field Association's annual awards banquet on the weekend.

Sprinter Bev Cox of Victoria was named top female athlete in the junior division while javelin-thrower Phil Olsen of Nanaimo was named top male athlete in the juvenile category.

Long-distance runner Thelma Wright of Vancouver and hurdler Tom Howard of Richmond were named the province's outstanding male and female athletes for 1974.

High jumper Dean Bauch of UBC was named top junior male and sprinter Tinker Robinson was selected as top juvenile female.

Weight record for Russian

MOSCOW (Reuters) —

World-champion David Rigert of the Soviet Union improved his own world weightlifting records for the middle-heavyweight snatch, jerk and total lift Sunday in the Russian championships. Rigert, 27, registered 175.5 kilograms (385.75 pounds) for the snatch, 215.5 kilograms (474 pounds) for the jerk and 390 kilograms (859.75 pounds) for the total lift.

Fourth victory for Aussie

CHIBA, Japan (AP) —

Veteran Australian Graeme Marsh scored his fourth golfing victory in Japan this year, capturing the Bridgestone tournament Sunday by one stroke over Seiichi Numazawa of Japan. Marsh, who began the final round one stroke behind Numazawa, overcame him with a three-under-par 69 for a 72-hole total of 19-under-par 278. He earned the top prize of $16,666.

Next games: Tonight — New Westminster at VICTORIA; Brandon at Kamloops.

Victoria Cougars will go after their fourth straight Western Canada Hockey League victory tonight, and for the first time in nine games—defenceman Gordie Roberts could be in the lineup.

Cougars, who play host to New Westminster Bruins for an 8 p.m. game at Memorial Arena, are awaiting a call from an Ottawa lawyer, who Monday filed an injunction in court, claiming the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association is "violating the player's human rights by refusing to grant him an east-west transfer."

The lawyer is seeking a court order which will permit Roberts, an American citizen, to rejoin the Cougars until the case is heard.

Roberts, a graduate of Detroit Junior Wings of the Southern Ontario Hockey League, was suspended by WCHL-president Ed Chynoweth, Oct. 22, when Sudbury Wolves of the Ontario Hockey Association filed a protest with the CAHA.

Wolves, who selected the youth in the annual draft of graduating 16-year-olds, claim his Canadian playing rights and have refused several offers to settle out of court.

A weekend meeting of the OHA in Kitchener failed to resolve the question and Roberts' father, who says his son will either play for the Cougars or the U.S. national junior team, instructed his lawyer to start legal proceedings.

Cougars, who charged to a 6-4 win over the Chiefs in Kamloops on Sunday, will have their hands full with the Bruins, who have dropped three of their last four home games, including a stormy 4-2 defeat on Sunday to Brandon Wheat Kings.

Two members of the Bruins were disciplined Monday for their part in the affair at Queen's Park Arena.

Lions to try new backs

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions put two import defensive backs on five-day trials Monday as they began preparing for the Western Football Conference semi-final Sunday in Regina.

They are Luther Howard of Delaware State and Lowry Briley of East Texas State.

Howard, 22, was on a five-day trial with the Lions earlier this season. The six-foot-one, 185-pounder attended the Montreal training camp last June and led the Alouettes in pre-season interceptions with three. Briley, 23, played four games with Edmonton Eskimos during the middle of the Canadian Football League schedule. The five-foot-eleven, 175-pounder was released about six weeks ago.

Coach Ernie McLean was fined $100 and captain Clay Pachal was suspended for tonight's game.

McLean went to the officials' room after the game and berated the referee. Chynoweth said in assessing the fine, and Pachal was suspended for "outright intimidation" when he dropped his gloves and stick and started a fight with only 19 seconds to play in the game.

In Kamloops, league-leading scorer Mel Bridgman ran his point total to 39 when he scored on a penalty shot with about a minute remaining to snap a 4-1 tie.

The Cougar-centre, who scored twice Sunday, now has 16 goals and a league-leading 23 assists.

Linemate Peter Morris also scored a pair of goals and is fourth in scoring with 30 points, one point behind Jim Minor of Regina Pats and three behind Rick Blight of Brandon.

Tim Williams and Jim Gustafson were the other Cougar marksmen.

Your leisure years made easier.

First Canadian Retirement Savings Plan

First Canadian Retirement Savings Plan helps you plan for your leisure years.

Retirement can be the time of your life. But you have to plan for it now, while your earning power—and probably your expenses—are high. You can start by reading about First Canadian Retirement Savings Plan, and how it can make your leisure years, as well as your saving years, much, much easier.

Reduce your income tax while you save for your retirement.

By investing in First Canadian Retirement Savings Plan any time during and up to 60 days after a taxation year, you may reduce your taxable income by the amount of your investment, up to the lesser of: 20% of your earned income, $4000 if you have no pension plan, $2500 if you are a non-contributing member of a pension plan, or $2500 less the amount of your contributions to a company pension plan. Your tax reduction is not affected by payment into the Canada or Quebec Pension Plans. Income tax will have to be paid on your savings eventually—either when used as retirement income or if you withdraw your savings prior to retirement—but probably at a lower rate than during your peak earning years. For more detailed information on how this can be to your advantage, ask for R.R.S.P. specialist R. W. Wakefield's booklet, "Registered Retirement Savings Plans".

Choose from two options.

At present there are two options available. Both are eligible for registration with the tax authorities so that you can reduce your annual income tax.

Option I—First Canadian Mortgage Fund.

In today's financial market, investment in a quality mortgage fund is considered a good bet to produce a relatively secure high yield over the long term. At the same time, investors may realize an increase in value of their units in this Fund depending on prevailing mortgage interest rates.

There is no load on the purchase or redemption of these units.

Option II—Firstbank Special Retirement Account.

Your deposits in this special bank account will earn interest at the Bank's Five-Year-Term Deposit Receipt rate. This rate of interest will be fixed every January 1st and July 1st at the rate prevailing that day—and remain in effect for six months.

The best time to start is right now.

Now is the time to arrange your saving program for the future with First Canadian Retirement Savings Plans.

Calgarian captures squash title

Fourth-seeded Phil Mottadi of Calgary won the premier event at the Pacific Northwest squash racquets singles championship Sunday at Victoria Racquet Club.

Mottadi, winner of the Canadian junior and B.C. open titles this year, won the "A" class final with a 3-1 win over second-seeded Pat Richardson of Vancouver.

The Alberta reached the final with a 3-1 win over Les Harding of Seattle, who had earlier eliminated top-seeded George Morfitt of Vancouver.

Richardson defeated Dick Radloff of Seattle 3-1 in the other semi-final.

In the other events, Phil Green of Victoria won the "B" class championship, Dean Duvall of Portland was "C" champion and Rene Bradley of Victoria won the "D" final.

Green, who needs one more win this season to earn "A" rating, stopped Sandy Koski of Portland 3-2 in the final; Duvall topped Graeme Cunningham of Victoria 3-1. Bradley edged to a 3-2 win over Victoria's Blair Krueger in the "D" final.

Jane Dixon of Victoria won the women's title with a 3-0 win over Seonaid Bampton of Tacoma.

Tom Bruecker defeated Dick Daley 3-2 in an all-Seattle "A" veterans' final while Peter Woolley of Vancouver posted a 3-0 win over Bud Fields of Portland for "B" veterans' honors.

Visiting rinks tops at Lake Cowichan

LAKE COWICHAN — Flora Martin and her Victoria Curling Club combination of Elsie Humphrey, Marie Swanton and Ida Fuller defeated Doreen McBride of the Victoria Racquet Club Sunday to win top honors in the second annual women's bouspiel at the Lake Cowichan Curling Club.

Visiting rinks made a sweep of the four events, Barb Odeh of the Club and Ruby Niemeyer of the Victoria club winning "B" and "C" events, respectively and Ellie Giese of Duncan taking the "D" event.

Runners-up in the last three events were Isabel Heller of Duncan, Mae Baird of Lake Cowichan and Joan Hepburn of Duncan.

Losing semi-finalists in "A" event were Grace Deans of Lake Cowichan and Laurel Eby of Victoria; in "B" event Sharon Kaspiak of Duncan and Marlene Davenport of Lake Cowichan; in "C" event Marg Smith of Lake Cowichan and June Randall of the Racquet Club, and in "D" event Betty James of Duncan and Nona Hill of Lake Cowichan.

Vic West topples Nanaimo as Booth boots two goals

Victoria West scored the upset of the season Sunday in the premier division of the Vancouver Island Soccer League by posting a 3-1 win over previously-unbeaten Nanaimo City.

High school scoring star Greg Booth led the way for Vic West with two goals and Gary McLaren added the other for the winners of the match played at Heywood Avenue Park.

Don Attig scored for Nanaimo City, which had four wins and three draws in seven previous matches.

In other premier division action, Larry Louie scored three goals to lead Powell River Villars to a 5-3 win over Oak Bay at Topaz Park and Duncan Powell's Men's West picked up its first point of the season by playing to a 2-2 draw with the visiting Cosmo-politan Royals.

Highlight of other matches Sunday was the six-goal performance by Robert Guillerrez in a 10-0 Da Vinci win over Royal Roads in the third division.

Alberta sets track marks

EDMONTON (CP) — A record year for thoroughbred racing at Northlands Park in Edmonton and Stampede Park in Calgary have been reported by the Western Canada Racing Association.

Betting at Northlands and Stampede Park soared to $19,656,835, roughly $7.5 million more than in 1973. The 1974 figure averaged out to just over $45,000 a race for 1085 races during the 127 days of racing. More than $2.7 million was paid out in purses, an increase of about $500,000 from 1973.

There were 116 days of racing in 1973, when betting amounted to $11,616,334 and purses reached $2,288,327.

Champion again

PERTH, Australia (AP) — Veteran Gary Player of South Africa coasted to his seventh Australian Open golf title Sunday, firing a final round, one-over-par 73 for a 72-hole total of 277 and a three-stroke victory over Norman Wood of Scotland.

VANCOUVER — It's still early but if the first weekend's results are any indication, Victoria Scorpions will be right at home in the Dogwood Senior "A" men's basketball league.

Scorpions, who made their debut in the Vancouver-based circuit this season after two campaigns of exhibition play, scored two wins, over the highly-rated Richmond Ramblers and nabbed first place in the five-team league.

With Bob Burrows leading the way in both games, Scorpions scored a 97-72 win Sunday and a 111-72 decision Saturday.

Burrows scored 23 points in the Saturday game and added 25 on Sunday.

Scorpions make their home debut this weekend with a pair of games against Burnaby-New Westminster, at Central Junior High School. Game time Saturday is 8 p.m. and Sunday's game is scheduled for a 2 p.m. start.

Green and McLendon team-golf winners

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Hubert Green rolled in the go-ahead birdie putt on the 17th hole to give himself and partner Mac McLendon a one-stroke victory Sunday in the $250,000 national team golf championship.

Green and McLendon, both from Birmingham, Ala., combined for a final-round 64 and a 255 total, a distant 33 under par on the 7,163-yard Magnolia Course at Walt Disney World.

Scoring is based on each team's better ball on each hole.

Sam Snead and nephew J. C. Snead finished in a second-place tie with Bert Yancey and Ed Snead, just one shot back at 256. The Sneads had a last-round 64 while Yancey and Snead, the third-round pace-setters, birdied the final hole for a 67.

Green, who now has won four times this season, and McLendon, whose only previous tour triumph came in the 1968 Magnolia Classic, each collected $25,000.

His portion of the prize moved Green ahead of Lee Trevino and into third place on the season's money list with $211,709. Trevino won $203,422 this year.

Johnny Miller topped all golfers with a record $333,030 in earnings, breaking the record of $308,262 won in 1973 by Jack Nicklaus, second to Miller this year with $238,178.

The payday was also significant for the Sneads. J. C. increased his earnings to $164,486, fifth on the 1974 list while Sam's official money rose to $55,572, his biggest money year in a career that spans four decades.

Nicklaus and Tom Weiskopf never really got in the chase in this final event on the American tour schedule this season. They finished with a 66 for 260. Miller, an eight-time winner this year, and Grier Jones had a 64 — 262.

Arnold Palmer and partner Lanny Wadkins twice got to within a single shot of the lead, then blew it on the last nine holes. They finished at 263.

George Knudson of Toronto and Bob E. Smith had a closing 67 for 265, worth $1,640 each.

At one time or another over the final round, seven teams led or shared the lead before the lanky Green settled the issue on the 17th hole with a 12-footer from his unorthodox, crouching putting stance.

Rounding out the top 10 on the 1974 list of earnings were Dave Stockton ($155,105); Hale Irwin ($152,329); Jerry Heard ($145,788); Brian Allin ($137,960); and Tom Watson ($135,474).

Defenceman J. C. Tremblay slammed in a power-play goal midway through the third period Monday night to snap a 3-3 tie and inspire Quebec Nordiques to a 5-3 win over Toronto Toros in a World Hockey Association game before 8210 Toronto fans.

The win was the first on the road for the Nordiques and the loss was Toros' first at home. It was also the fourth straight loss for the Toronto club which opened the season with six straight home wins.

Pierre Guite, Michael Parizeau, Serge Bernier and defenceman Dale Hoganson were the other Montreal scorers while Wayne Dillon fired two goals for the Toros with Pat Hickey getting the other.

Dillon's goals raised his point total to 17 and moved him back into a tie with Bobby Hull in the league scoring race.

Squealing tires didn't get speedy eviction

Colonist Reporter

Bob Hutton believes tenants have all the rights and that landlords like himself are powerless under the new Landlord and Tenant Act. It's the only conclusion he can reach, he said, after his trouble Friday in attempting to evict a tenant from his apartment, Squire House, 268 Superior.

Hutton, manager of the building, served an eviction notice on a woman tenant whose boyfriend repeatedly squealed his car tires in the parking lot in the early morning.

Warnings were issued but he continued to be noisy and other tenants complained to Hutton.

Hutton said the woman didn't bother to appeal her eviction notice in writing to the B.C. Rentalsman as the new law provides.

So out she was to go, thought Hutton, who had rented her the apartment.

But she stayed as her lawyer said she could.

And new tenants who arrived Friday morning found themselves out on the sidewalk with their furniture.

Hutton tried to get a court order Friday forcing the woman to vacate but the sheriff would not serve the tenant notice.

Court officials said they didn't want to get involved in a landlord-tenant dispute, Hutton said in an interview over the weekend.

Before the new act, Hutton said, a tenant disputing an eviction order had to appear before a judge and argue why he shouldn't be evicted. And if the reasons weren't good enough, the sheriff paid a visit and the tenant went apartment hunting.

Hutton sought help Friday from the Rentalsman's office in Vancouver and was told by Deputy Rentalsman Phil Barter to tell the tenacious tenant that "she may be liable for damages for refusal to get out of the building."

Meantime, the woman was asked to submit her reasons why she shouldn't be evicted to the Rentalsman for study.

If the tenant is at fault, Barter said Monday, an order of termination of tenancy will be issued by the Rentalsman's office. Barter warned that this order is as binding as a court order.

He said Hutton was among those landlords across the province who found themselves issuing eviction notices in the transition period between the old and new act proclaimed Oct. 1.

Barter said the Rentalsman waived the 15-day period provided under the new act because tenants might not have known they could challenge an eviction order and were waiting for the landlord to take them to court to dispute the eviction.

However, he said, this only applied to Nov. 1 evictions. Tenants smashing walls or repeatedly playing their stereos at full blast at 2 a.m. can still be thrown out. The act lists 14 situations for termination of residency by the landlord.

But Gordon Reeson, president of the Greater Victoria Apartment Owners' Association, fears the Rentalsman may require too exacting documentation of tenant misbehavior before allowing a challenged eviction order.

Reeson doubts many tenants who complain to him about vandalism or noise will want to put it in writing as he expects the Rentalsman will require.

However, Reeson doesn't think the requirements for eviction now favor the tenant. He said it all will depend on how the Rentalsman interprets them.

Press bothers union

Case of meeting that never was

The presence of reporters and heavy downtown traffic played havoc Monday with what was to have been the first labor-management meeting in this year's round of Greater Victoria library pay talks.

Canadian Union of Public Employees representatives appeared disgusted with the library board's new idea of opening negotiations to the press.

They left minutes after their arrival shortly before 2 p.m. at the Central Library's second-floor board-room.

The result was that when four members of the board's negotiating committee, who had been delayed by a parking snarl, eventually made their way to the negotiating table they found it was a case of the meeting that never was.

Library board chairman Ald. Shirley Dowell was the only management negotiating committee member present to witness the ire of the CUPE man at being surprised by two reporters.

Ald. Dowell told the Colonist the board felt that opening up initial negotiations to the public would be to the taxpayers' advantage.

"It was the unanimous decision by the library board that the public should now know what the CUPE demands are right away."

CUPE field representative Alex Markides, accompanied by three members of Local 410 (a local representing 82 library staff), saw it differently.

Markides said he was completely surprised by the board's seemingly "futile" idea of opening up negotiations.

"The union has not been officially notified in any manner that there would be people other than the negotiating committee for the library board present... we are not prepared to negotiate in that way."

The library board's "open negotiation" experiment now goes back for further discussion by board members Nov. 26.

CUPE local 410's two-year contract with the board expires Dec. 31.

Ducks' crossing Oak Bay warns

Oak Bay council has approved the installation of a sign near Royal Victoria Yacht Club to warn motorists of mallard ducks which cross the road from the beach at that point.

Ald. John Gault introduced the motion Monday after a complaint from a woman in the neighborhood, whose garden is visited by the ducks and who has noticed the ducks almost being run over by cars.

Questions, questions, no answer

Elusive new school still unbuilt

By BILL LEVER
Colonist Reporter

Where is the new school? In a newsletter to parents, Spectrum Community School principal Wally Russell says "I am asked this question each day."

But he still doesn't have a definite answer. Despite the fact the new school has been planned for four years, neither does anyone else.

Spectrum, the 850-student secondary school planned as a replacement for Mount View, has encountered a long series of bureaucratic and financial stumbling blocks, and construction is yet to begin on the Burnside-Acorn site purchased by the school board in March 1971.

Everybody, with the apparent exception of the education department, is getting impatient.

Russell, answering the daily queries from parents and students, tells them he understands construction will begin as soon as the education department completes a review of construction costs and approves building the school under contract management. The study is expected to be completed by Nov. 12.

"I urge you to be patient until this report is completed," Russell writes in his newsletter. "If the go-ahead is not received at that time, I can only suggest that Spectrum parents must get political."

The latest financial delay to construction came in August when bids for the contract were more than $1 million over the $3.5 million ceiling set by the government.

The school board rejected the bids and attempted to proceed with construction on a contract management basis, which would involve contractor, architect and owner working together to find the most inexpensive building methods and materials.

But the education department intervened and demanded a cost-design analysis to be conducted by an independent team of consultants.

That analysis, at a cost of $10,000 split equally by the school board and education department, has begun and is expected to be complete in about two weeks.

School district officials, as well as the Spectrum staff, are dismayed at this seemingly pointless delay.

Walter Donald, school board construction committee chairman, said it's obvious that costs are not going down while the study continues.

"We wanted to build as much as we can with as much money as we have," Donald says. "We still want that."

"We would like to get this study done and get what I hope is the last possible interference out of the way, and then get the school built."

Russell agrees. "While they're still deciding whether they can afford it, the contractor is sitting on his thumbs and we're sitting here in a 42-year-old school while construction costs continue skyrocketing."

Missing auto found in lake

A 1961 Austin Healey stolen from Shelbourne Street over the weekend was found with its rear sticking up out of Duran Lake Monday night, Saanich police reported.

Police believe the thieves dumped it in the lake.

Rights meeting planned in city

Human rights ministers from across Canada will meet Thursday and Friday in Victoria to discuss such matters as the policies and objectives of human rights legislation.

In announcing the meeting Monday, Labor Minister William King said human rights commissioners and directors from across the country will also be attending.

Sugar soars again, consumers hoard

The wholesale price of sugar rose Monday by another $4.70 for 100 pounds and, while there is no major shortage in Greater Victoria, store staffs have had to hustle to keep shelves stocked as customers buy in quantity before prices go up at the retail level, too.

Since last week, when the wholesale price of sugar rose $5.25 a hundredweight, shoppers have been hoarding as much as they can buy.

Apart from Woodward's, which has been sold out of sugar since Saturday, and is not expecting a new shipment until Wednesday, most Greater Victoria stores have limited supplies at old prices — about 54 cents a pound in bulk.

Canada Safeway, at Town and Country shopping centre, ordered an additional 2,000 pounds of sugar Friday in anticipation of extra demand and nearly all was sold by Monday night. A new order will arrive today.

A spokesman for Esquimalt Warehouse said there was frantic buying on the weekend. "I've never seen it like that before," he said.

When a new shipment arrives this week, the price may be increased nine to 10 cents a pound, he surmised.

Malkins and other wholesale suppliers said their stocks are low.

At Malkins, there are usually four or five days' stock in reserve, according to a spokesman, but "in the past few days it has been going out as fast as it's come in."

Malkins supplies Shop-Easy and large independent stores.

Waiting

Vacant former Ocean Cement site on Victoria's Inner Harbor is now a temporary parking lot until final use is determined. Fee for every two hours is 25 cents, subject to review at least once a year. Site was bought more than three years ago by city in partnership with provincial and federal governments under now discontinued urban renewal scheme.

Esquimalt houseboats float on uncertain sea

Esquimalt council may have a housing problem that floats beyond its reach with the increasing number of houseboats in West Bay Marina.

Council's legal right to control the standards and numbers of such accommodation is being studied, Ald. Terry Prentice told his planning, zoning, and housing committee Monday night.

Prentice said a 1971 zoning amendment prohibited boat shelters and bathhouses at marinas.

But, Prentice added, it is not clear whether bathhouses include houseboats.

One houseboat resident attending the committee meeting estimated that close to 30 persons live aboard boats and houseboats at the marina.

John Melnyk, spokesman for West Bay Marina, said six new houseboats are under construction.

In answer to Prentice's statement that houseboats "historically tend to be a sub-standard type of housing," Melnyk said houseboats at the marina were approved esthetically by him and met strict marine sewage regulations.

Mayor Art Young noted that houseboat residents sent their children to municipal schools but "did not contribute one plug nickel to Esquimalt's upkeep."

Despite Melnyk's concern that his houseboaters and marina wanted to become "good corporate citizens," Prentice said there was no way that residents could pay municipal taxes. The marina does pay taxes.

In other business, the committee, under Prentice's urging, made no recommendation concerning a proposed density development of a 23-acre tract on Admirals.

Prentice said he wanted to hold another meeting with residents to discuss the opposition to the plan that would put a 50-unit townhouse development in the area.

Saanich zoning:

Wish causes stir

Zoning for the entire Queenswood Road-MacDonald Drive area in Saanich will be reviewed because one man wants to subdivide his property.

D'Arcy Bridgman, of 2600 MacDonald, wants to subdivide his property and build another home, but the lots would be smaller than the one-half acre minimum zoning for the area.

Saanich council decided Monday to table Bridgman's application until municipal planner Tom Loney completes a report on severed and misused lots, with the intention of updating the area's zoning by-law.

"The one-half acre zoning was brought in in the day of septic tanks," Ald. William Campbell told council, after Ald. Mel Couveller pointed out the lot fronts on a sewer.

"Common sense points to us finding a way to accommodate Mr. Bridgman," Couveller said. He added that development of the property would be an improvement and that immediate neighbors have no objection to Bridgman's plans.

However, Loney said he had found mixed feelings among residents — some wanting to subdivide their large lots and others opposed to any development.

gifts your mother says you don't need.

A grandparent arrives three hours early for your baptism, your graduation, and your wedding because he or she wants a seat where he or she can see everything.

A grandparent pretends he doesn't know who you are on Halloween.

A grandparent loves you when you're a bald baby to a bald father and all the hair in between.

A grandparent will put a sweater on you when she is cold, feed you when she is hungry and put you to bed when she is tired.

A grandparent will brag on you when you get a typing pin that 80 other girls got.

A grandparent will frame a picture of your hand that you traced and put it in her Mediterranean living room.

A grandparent will slip you money just before Mother's Day.

A grandparent will accept your calls from anywhere — collect.

A grandparent will help you with your buttons, your zippers and your shoelaces and not be in any hurry for you to grow up.

When you're a baby, a grandparent will check to see if you are crying when you are sound asleep.

NEW YORK (AP) — When Ralph G. Martin decided to write a book about the Duke and Duchess of Windsor he found he faced a challenge — to find the answer to the question that has been asked for nearly 40 years:

Why?

"Here was the Prince Charming of the world — gay, debonair, handsome," explained the author of The Woman He Loved. "Women were waiting in line. He could pick any one of them, and whom does he pick? A woman 40 years old, divorced, and really not beautiful."

"Why?"

Martin found his answer one afternoon in the quiet drawing room of a house on the Riviera, where the duchess agreed to see him because she had read and liked his previous book, Jennie: The Life of Lady Randolph Churchill.

"We had had a warm, friendly lunch," he recalled. "She was full of beans, witty, sharp, laughing, keeping the conversation going when it lagged. She was almost 80 but looked 20 years younger."

Her eyes are her most dramatic feature — great big, violet-blue, looking as if every word I said was the most interesting thing she had ever heard and as if I was the most fascinating man she had ever met.

"I thought, 'My God, this is how she caught him.' And indeed it was."

"With her the duke was a human being. He was not a celebrity. With her he was just a man she called David, while everyone else called him 'sir.' She watched over him, she took a glass out of his hand if she thought he'd had too much to drink, she was his mother, sister, sweetheart and friend. She was not just a love or a passion with him. She was an obsession."

Duchess of Windsor
... his obsession

Martin spent two years researching and writing the book. He travelled extensively, read countless books, checked newspaper files, dug into church records. He interviewed dozens of people who had known the pair, including every one of the living schoolmates of the former Wallis Warfield at a girls' boarding school in Baltimore.

"This is the first time the whole thing can be told," the author commented. "A great many people who loved the duke would not have talked while he was alive. It is not only the greatest love story but it turned out to be a spy story in Spain, a mystery story in the Bahamas and a political story with the abdication."

Martin sees parallels between the inexorable course of events leading toward the abdication and similar forces resulting in the resignation of former president Nixon.

"When you're at a pinnacle of power you make a decision that triggers something else, which in turn triggers something else and soon the result is irrevocable," he said.

"Circumstances take over and you're no longer in control. Everything comes crashing down. Both the duke and the president thought till the last minute they could handle it but they got caught in a web of statements, decisions and circumstances."

"The difference was that the king would never have hesitated to do it again." While he believes that the duke was more in love with the duchess than she with him, he said there is no question that she was happy.

"She always had a consciousness that she was a piece of romantic history and the whole world paid enormous attention to everything she did."

"She had to pay a price for it, but the price was right."

'I had only God to depend on'

A wino makes it back

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Jerry, an American Indian, led a wasted life during his childhood. He never knew his parents and had to fend for himself.

There wasn't much to do on the Rosebud reserve in South Dakota so he spent a considerable amount of his time getting in trouble with the law. He spurned schooling as a symbol of the white man.

One thing led to another and Jerry became an alcoholic. He became familiar with the interior of jail cells and eventually served a lengthy sentence in a Kansas prison.

He has been sober for 20 years now, he told a recent Georgian Bay district Alcoholics Anonymous convention, and his life as a drunk now is just a bad memory.

Jerry — his full name was withheld to protect his anonymity — told 300 alcoholics at the convention that Alcoholics Anonymous saved him from a life in prison and possible early death.

"I was a wino, not by choice but because of financial reasons," said Jerry, who lives in Detroit. He described how he begged for nickels and dimes to buy rubbing alcohol which he mixed with grapefruit juice.

"I remember trying desperately to drink the rubbing alcohol mix, my stomach in convulsions, and asking God at the same time to help me keep it down."

Jerry described 13 months he spent "close to insanity" in a prison psychopathic ward after a drinking spree.

"I lay there for 13 months never knowing if it was day or night. My mouth frothed, my stomach heaved and my nose would run so badly I couldn't breathe. The only thing I had to depend on was God."

He said he called on God to "show me what to do because I didn't want to die."

Jerry's back was covered with painful bed sores from lying constantly on the narrow prison cot. He joined Alcoholics Anonymous while in prison.

Last week I decided to stop hitting. I came right out and told Auntie how my husband and I felt about her loud belching. She claims she can't help it, that it's the result of her hysterectomy. If this is true we will try to be more tolerant. Check it out, will you please? — Undone Katy

Dear Katy: Auntie's hysterectomy has nothing to do with her belching. If she believes she has a physical problem she ought to go to a doctor and find out what it is.

Regardless, the woman should attempt to lower the decibel rating of her belching, as a matter of courtesy.

As for your children, if you can't put an end to their crude behavior now, they are out of control and I feel sorry for you. The worst is yet to come.

Dear Ann Landers: The husband who signed himself "Hungry" was right on target. But he left a lot of territory uncovered.

Those immaculate housekeepers who expend all their energy polishing and waxing floors and starching the kitchen curtains until long after midnight aren't the only ones who are losing out. Add to the list the double-domed intellectuals who read literary classics, atomic energy manuals, books on economics and international relations. She ought to be smart enough to know that that ain't where it's at at 2 a.m.

I don't need a sexpot, either. Just a woman who knows what time it is. Sign my letter — Hungry II

Dear Hungry: Sometimes it

After pledging to stay on the wagon, he became obsessed with reading and writing. He walked around the prison grounds, a Grade 1 reader constantly tucked under his arm at age 24.

"Although I spent three weeks on the letter A before I made it to the letter B I finally learned the whole alphabet one letter at a time," he told the convention.

Jerry now looks more like a well-dressed middle-aged businessman than a skid-road dervish.

"Now God always throws some old drunk at me to keep me straight instead of a doctor or priest. Now it feels very warm to say I love each and every one of you."

Ann Landers

helps if you buy her a nice watch. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing in the hope that you can print this before my parents split. Here's the story:

Mom is the third in a family of five children. She was always the one who had to do all the dirty work. She was also the one who was least loved. Now that Grandma is very sick, Mom is the one who visits her every day in the hospital. She is also the one who goes to Grandma's place and cooks and cleans and does his laundry.

These daily visits to the hospital and to Grandma's infuriate my father. Grandma is practically a vegetable. She doesn't know anybody and it can't matter to her if Mom comes or not. Daddy just can't seem to get this through her head. He says she is proving by her actions that she cares more about her parents than she does about her husband and children.

They argue about this all the time and I'm afraid of what might happen. Any advice? — B.K.S.

Dear B.K.S.: Your dad doesn't understand that your mother is still knocking herself out to get the approval of her parents — and she will do it as long as they live.

I hope your dad will see that this has nothing to do with him or your children. It's a highly neurotic pattern of behavior and not an uncommon one. Your mom feels that she MUST do this, and no one can change her mind.

Parrakeets: prey of birds?

LONDON (Reuter) — Airline officials are probing an incident in which live parrakeets were killed by eagles and buzzards on a 10-hour flight from New Delhi to London. The corpses of the parrakeets were found at London's Heathrow airport, in boxes containing 18 tawny eagles and 14 white buzzards. The birds of prey were on their way to pet shops in Vienna and Brussels.

REOX - For The Treatment of Respiratory Distress

Physicians and hospital authorities have been made aware of the unique advantages of the Reox oxygen separator in the treatment of respiratory ailments.

The Reox 2500 System — What It Is And How It Operates.

The Reox oxygen separator extracts nitrogen, carbon dioxide and water vapour from the air, while permitting the passage of almost pure oxygen. By this means a constant supply of oxygen-enriched air is maintained for an indefinite period. The air reaching the patient through a nasal cannula is approximately 90% oxygen, with 4.5% argon and the remainder nitrogen. The system, housed in an attractive-looking cabinet, operates on standard 110V power — or can be adapted to suit other power requirements.

For The Treatment Of Emphysema, Chronic Bronchitis, Asthma, Bronchiectasis, Cystic Fibrosis

Previously sufferers from severe and chronic respiratory ailments had to be hospitalized for long periods of time. With the introduction of the Reox 2500 unit, the patient can live a more normal life at home. The apparatus is so simple anybody can use it.

Insomnia or the Devil at Large

Miller bares old love but only in letters

By BRUCE RUSSELL
LOS ANGELES (Reuter)—Author Henry Miller is in love again.

But the 82-year-old writer, confined to bed for most of the day because of illness, refuses to talk much about his new love. Instead, he said in a recent interview that he had completed a new book—about an old love.

Miller, whose erotic works Tropic of Cancer and Tropic of Capricorn set up a chain reaction of censorship around the world in the 1930s, is about to publish a book about his courtship of a young Japanese showgirl, his fifth wife.

The book, Insomnia, or the Devil at Large, describes what the octogenarian author calls his "despair and frustration" in the courting of his young wife.

Estranged from her now but still good friends, he finds, looking back on it, that the courtship proved more intriguing than the marriage.

"It wasn't a really good marriage," he said. "It was more like a truce of some kind. She thought it was more like living with an ambassador here and I got bored with going round to her go-go places."

They remain married partly because, Miller said, he does not intend going through the tedious process of getting a divorce again.

"But in the meantime, I have fallen in love with someone else," he said. He refused to reveal further details about her beyond saying she is also Oriental but this time is a "mature woman."

"With me it's always love with a capital L," Miller said. "When I tell young people I'm in love they just can't understand it. They look at me as if I were some phenomenon from another planet."

"The young are the people who are supposed to be romantic, but they're not. So it's up to us older people to keep romance alive."

Largely bedridden during the last year with arthritis and sciatica and deprived of the use of his right eye by an operation, Miller wrote his new book in longhand because he can no longer type.

He has retained his wry humor and lively mind, and gets out as much as he is physically able, appearing on television talk shows and opening an exhibit of his paintings at the Windsor Gallery in Los Angeles.

Of the book he is writing, Miller said: "It pays homage to all my old, intimate, life-long friends."

He refused to reveal at this stage who will be in the book although his friends and acquaintances have included some of the most famous writers and painters of the century like Pablo Picasso, Salvador Dali, D. H. Lawrence and James Joyce.

"The trouble is that some of these people—believe it or not—are still alive, so I have to be careful what I say."

"My problem is that I have this compulsion to tell the truth and not to conceal or hide things."

But Miller said the book will have none of those vivid sexual passages which marked his Tropic novels.

"It isn't necessary in this book. My first books were about Paris and they were in accord with my life at that time."

"The main reason why those early books created such a sensation was because of the language. I went to the limit in those days."

"Even now there are few books that rival the Tropics in frankness."

"They talk sex but they use roundabout expressions. I used the good Anglo-Saxonisms."

Students lead walk for Way

High school students of the Greater Victoria school district are spearheading this year's walkathon, which will be held Saturday, to raise funds for the United Way Campaign.

The walk will start at 8 a.m. from Scout House, 1034 Johnson, and will take contestants along the waterfront, through Oak Bay, Cadboro Bay, Gordon Head, Shelbourne, Hillside and along Cook Street to finish at Scout House.

The Citizens Band Radio, local radio stations and St. John Ambulance members will patrol the 20-mile route and walkers will have their cards stamped at checkpoints by representatives of the Victoria Boy Scouts Association.

People interested in walking or sponsoring a student may pick up forms from the United Way office, 737 Fort, at the Y-M-WCA, at Scout House, or any high school in District 61.

The high school turning in the largest amount of money per capita will have the United Way flag to fly and will receive a shield from radio station CKDA.

Doug Vickery of Oak Bay senior high school is out taking the challenge to other schools in the district.

New magazine:

High (drug) Times

NEW YORK (AP)—High Times is one of those new, glossy specialty magazines. It's an above-ground quarterly for drug users.

"If a couple of thousand airplane pilots can have 20 glossy magazines, why can't 26 million dope smokers have one, too?" said Anastasia Sirrocco, one of the magazine's founders.

Articles include reports on lush market conditions in Lebanon and LSD manufacturing in San Francisco as well as advice on indoor marijuana gardening. Ads offer items such as amphetamine test kits and mentholated rolling papers.

The magazine's centerpiece is a full-color photo of a 20-pound cube of marijuana.

"We're putting an affluent perspective on an old topic," said Ed Dwyer, 26, editor of the magazine, which is two issues old. "We wanted an intelligent and sophisticated approach to a subject that's been badly reported by the media."

"We don't advocate the use of drugs, but feel that a trade magazine for the drug industry is necessary," said Miss Sirrocco who wore a girl scout dress and a tiny cocaine spoon around her neck at a publicity party.

Party guests sampled laughing gas from balloons, stood in line for Alice B. Taktas marijuana-spiced brownies and passed marijuana cigarettes around.

The editors said the first issue, published in the spring, sold almost 50,000 copies at $1 each. The current issue will have an initial printing of 50,000.

Ulcers can follow death of loved one

GUELPH, Ont. (CP)—Persons unable to handle grief over the death of a loved one can develop ulcers, hyperactive thyroid and rheumatoid arthritis, says Guelph psychiatrist Dr. Merville Vincent.

Dr. Vincent, medical superintendent of Homewood Sanatorium, said the ability to cope with death in a normal manner is important to mental health and everyday usefulness.

It is misleading when persons attempt to avoid mourning by keeping busy and exhibiting a "zest for life".

"This over-activity, with no apparent sense of loss or sadness, can be described as a distorted reaction," said Vincent.

"During grief we may not feel very close to those who, come around us, and we may alienate some of them."

Vincent said a normal grief reaction should be over an initial "real crisis period" of four to six weeks, at which time the bereaved person should be resolving the crisis. He said funerals play a vital role in alleviating grief, bringing together friends who can give strength in times of severe stress.

SCHOOL DISCIPLINE

You are invited to present your views on discipline in the public schools to the Greater Victoria School Board. At an informal public meeting, trustees and administration will seek opinion in small group discussions.

Provincial COURT

The public is just as victimized by gallant criminals as by other types," Judge William Ostler said Monday in Victoria Provincial Court as he sentenced a 23-year-old Victoria man to 18 months in jail.

Perry James Dobie, 214 Russell, had pleaded guilty Oct. 10 to a Victoria charge of possession between July 11 and 16 of more than $4,000 in known stolen property. About half of it had been taken June 30 from the home of Standard Furniture official Tom Denny.

Defence lawyer Brian Smith said Dobie did not take part in the break-ins and thefts which provided the long list of stolen goods "but participated in their use."

Smith said two other accused persons "are fugitives and have not stood to face the music as (Dobie) has. There is some redeeming gallantry in this accused."

Ostler said Dobie's previous record for similar offences was serious but conceded Dobie had not joined in the thefts. He withdrew all charges against Holly Dyrland, 17, of 214 Russell, in the case.

William Roy Turner, 26, of 1157 Johnson, was remanded by Ostler to Nov. 19 for pre-sentence report and sentence following pleas of guilty to 11 break-in counts involving theft, intent to steal or attempted entry.

Prosecutor Gordon Macdonald said four counts involved incidents between Feb. 12 and Oct. 29 at the Golden Galleon Cafe, 2239 Oak Bay, where a total of $1,284 cash was stolen. Four more concerned incidents between March 23 and Oct. 29 at Casey's Bakery, 2032 Oak Bay, where about $95 cash was stolen in all.

On Oct. 29, said Macdonald, a policeman found Turner sitting across the street from the cafe. Turner said he was waiting for a bus and the officer knew the last bus had gone. He gave Turner a ride home.

Later, the constable found a window of the cafe had been smashed and found a belt buckle inside. He went to Turner's home and found that his former passenger owned a belt with a missing buckle. Turner admitted the break-in and said he had waited across the street while eating a pizza "to see if anybody would come."

Marcel Roger Gagne, 23, was sentenced by Ostler to eight months in jail after pleading guilty to a charge of being unlawfully at large.

Macdonald said Gagne was sentenced in 1973 at Port Alberni to four years for armed robbery and was transferred from the B.C. penitentiary in New Westminster to the community correctional centre at 921 Pandora Sept. 11.

He said Gagne signed out Sept. 30 to look for work but did not return and was picked up Friday by a Victoria policeman.

Gagne told Ostler he "had personal problems I had to straighten up." The judge replied that "everyone has personal problems — now you have an added one."

Gordon William Padley, 26, no fixed address, pleaded guilty to a Victoria charge of mischief and was sentenced by Ostler to one month in jail.

Macdonald said Padley went Saturday night to a roominghouse at 239 Superior to regain food he had lent to a resident. The landlady and a 68-year-old male tenant tried to get him to leave.

Padley said the elderly man pushed him down a flight of stairs and he threw a can of beans but missed the tenant and broke a front window. Then, "I just threw the other one," a can of sardines which went through a leaded stained-glass window. Damage totalled $225.

Padley had a record of six other convictions, one for mischief, which led Ostler to say "you don't seem to be a responsible or a very contributing citizen."

Reduce stumpage fee, Barrett asked

The B.C. Council of Forest Industries met with Premier Barrett and Resources Minister Robert Williams Monday to seek interim relief measures for the troubled industry.

Led by president Gordon Draeseke, the council asked for reduction of stumpage rates as an immediate interim measure. (Stumpage rates are paid to government in the form of a tax on trees cut in the forests.)

The council also sought more realistic appraisals, more flexible and speedier administrative decisions and a moratorium on all extra cost burdens.

Following the meeting, Draeseke said "layoffs in the industry are still increasing although they appear to be plateauing at about 14,000, an increase of eight per cent in the last two weeks."

Draeseke said the requests were received sympathetically by the premier and Williams, adding: "I think they agree with the point that it is in their interest as well as ours to keep as many mills as possible running."

Williams agreed the meeting had been amicable and promised "some announcements in the near future regarding some of their concerns which should improve the situation for both the in-

'I never had the gun out'

A Colwood RCMP constable's thoughts minute by minute during a Metchosis incident July 21 were examined Monday in Victoria Provincial Court as the first of seven trials resulting from the incident began.

All of this week and Tuesday of next week have been set aside in the court section of Judge Harold Alder for the trials, starting with one for Wayne Robert Boldo, 22, of Merritt, on a charge of assaulting constables Norman Biden and Kenneth Rowe.

Boldo's trial failed to finish on schedule Monday and he was never specifically tied in with an attack on Biden as prosecutor John Robbins and defence lawyer Michael Hutchison led Biden through intricate testimony about the reasons for his actions.

The testimony showed that a sizeable group of persons had been playing baseball on the grounds of Dunsmuir high school and were going home owing to rain—and picking up numerous beer bottles—when Biden drove by while delivering summonses.

Biden said he stepped over a small fence with the intention of telling the group to collect their bottles and leave. Almost at once, he was greeted with cries of "Fascist pig..." Hitler storm trooper... Who do you think you are? We've been doing this for months."

Biden said one person "under the influence of alcohol and trying to make himself look bigger than he is in the eyes of his friends" deliberately put a bottle of beer to his lips and took a drink.

He said he took the bottle, advised the person that a charge of consuming liquor in a public place was planned and asked for the person's name. The person refused three times to give it and Biden placed one hand on the right shirt sleeve.

Others then pushed between them. One knocked the bottle from his hand and flipped open Biden's holster cover, eventually taking the gun out and throwing it 20 feet away. The shirt sleeve was torn during this part of the incident.

Biden said he was being pushed at this time and realized that "I was in trouble" but would not radio for assistance for two reasons—backing to the police car might be taken as a sign of weakness and Biden knew other police were not available.

He said he had handled such disturbances in the past and felt firmness and fairness would cause the group to settle down but "I was mistaken."

He had recovered the beer bottle by the time he went down under a pile of eight bodies. While falling, he swung the bottle and hit the man who had been flipping the holster cover, connecting with the right side of the face.

While trying to escape from the piles Biden saw a boot coming, turned his head down—"I was eating dirt"—and was hit in one ear, receiving a cut that required seven stitches to close. Eventually, bystanders broke up the fight and helped Biden up.

Asked by Hutchison why he had not protected himself with his gun, Biden said: "I never had the gun out. I did not feel the situation warranted using a revolver."

AN UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY FOR CANADIANS TO INVEST IN GOLD AND SILVER COINAGE: NEW BRITISH COMMONWEALTH COINS HONOURING SIR WINSTON CHURCHILL TO BE STRUCK UNDER ROYAL AUTHORIZATION IN LIMITED PROOF EDITIONS BY THE ROYAL CANADIAN MINT.

A Significant Canadian Contribution to the Churchill Centenary. At left, the $25 gold coin of the Cayman Islands. At right, the 100 Crown gold coin of the Turks and Caicos Islands. Each will bear the country's coat of arms on the reverse. Identical designs will also be minted in sterling silver with $25 Cayman and 20 Crown Turks face values.

Proof coins can be offered only to advance subscribers, and early reservations are imperative.

Canada's renowned Royal Canadian Mint has recently earned a new honour. And Canadian coin collectors and investors will enjoy an unusual new opportunity as a result.

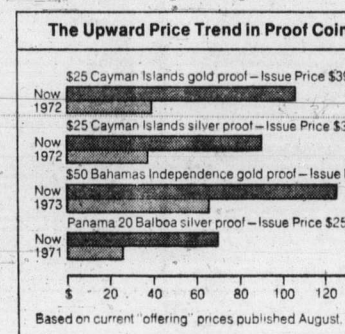

The Mint has been entrusted with the task of striking new, historically significant British Commonwealth gold coins that will be of world wide interest to collectors. And Canadians will have the first opportunity to acquire them before they are available in the United States and other world markets.

These two new coins, which will also be offered in two silver denominations, will bear the likeness of Sir Winston Churchill, the man who led the British nation "in its most deadly danger and its finest hour." All are to be issued in connection with the 100th anniversary of the late Prime Minister's birth, on November 30, 1974. A real possibility exists, however, that the limited quantity available may be over-subscribed before this official opening date of the Churchill Centenary.

The Royal Canadian Mint will strike this new coinage for the governments of the Cayman Islands and the Turks and Caicos Islands with the approval of the Lord Chamberlain on behalf of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II. Designs, by the internationally known sculptor Michael Rizzello, will be minted in .500 gold and .925 sterling silver. The Caymans issues will bear a face value of $100 for the 34mm gold coin and $25 for the 45mm silver coin. Turks and Caicos coins will have a 100 Crown face value for the 33mm gold and 20 Crowns for the 45mm silver coins.

The Upward Price Trend in Proof Coins.

As ordinary paper currencies continue to shrink in value, demand for genuine gold or silver coins has increased steadily, often dramatically, as the accompanying chart indicates. Inevitably, new U.S. legislation which makes it legal once again for Americans to own modern gold coins, will further increase this demand.

Here are four reasons—apart from their obvious historic significance, why these new Churchill coins may be expected to continue this trend:

1. All are authentic "coin of the realm" issued as legal tender in the Commonwealth countries where they will circulate.
2. All will have high face values.
3. All will be minted from real gold or silver—an increasing rarity in present day coinage.
4. Before these coins are put into circulation, the Royal Canadian Mint will strike a limited proof edition of each expressly for collectors.

Proof Coins Will Never Again Be Minted.

Unlike ordinary coinage, each Churchill proof coin will be individually double struck from its meticulously engraved dies to produce the superb finish and relief detail which raise the craft of minting to an art. Each will be individually inspected to assure the flawless workmanship which has earned the Royal Canadian Mint its international reputation. Each will receive an individual certificate of proof status signed by the Master of the Mint. And dies used to strike the proofs will be destroyed when these limited editions are completed.

Proof Coins Struck for Subscribers Only.

This precise, individual minting of proof coins will impose severe limitations on the number which can be minted. And, necessarily, Paramount Numismatics, official agents for both issues, are bound by equally severe limits on the number of reservations which can be accepted.

Since each proof will be struck for an individual subscriber's order, advance reservations are required. Orders from the general public for silver proofs must be postmarked before November 30, 1974, the 100th anniversary of Sir Winston Churchill's birth. Thereafter, only reservations from Paramount's own established customers can be accepted. All subscribers are limited to just two proof coins in any denomination.

And Paramount Numismatics has been authorized to reduce quantities or even cancel orders should total demand exceed the Mint's capacity.

How to Enter Your Reservation.

Cayman Islands proof coins will be priced at $200 in gold, $45 in silver, or $245 for the set of two. Prices of Turks and Caicos Islands proof coins have been set at $175 in gold, $30 in silver, or $205 for the set of two. Reservations should be sent and remittances made payable to Paramount Numismatics, Ltd. Those received too late to qualify will be promptly returned.

Driver ignores .13, dies

The case of a 32-year-old Victoria man who died in a Colwood area traffic accident Saturday night was cited in Victoria Provincial Court's traffic section Monday as a "graphic lesson" to persons who combine drinking and driving.

Prosecutor Nicholas Lang rose before Judge P. S. Green to ask for withdrawal of a charge against Kenneth Raymond McDonald, 1637 Craigdarroch, of driving in Victoria with a breath-analysis reading of more than .08 per cent.

he thought McDonald's case "provided a good object lesson." Green agreed, then withdrew the charge.

Victoria police, Colwood RCMP and Lang gave these details of what led up to a head-on collision which killed McDonald and left two persons injured:

At about 8:10 p.m. Saturday Victoria police saw McDonald driving his car near Pandora and Fernwood. He was stopped on Vancouver near Cook and taken to headquarters for a breath-analysis test.

The test showed a reading of .13 per cent alcohol in the blood, normally considered high enough for an "over .08" charge but not enough for a charge of impaired driving.

Police followed their normal procedure under the 1972 Canadian bail reform law and issued an appearance notice for McDonald to be in court Monday on an "over .08" charge. Officers made sure he understood and advised him not to drive his car.

McDonald was free to leave headquarters at 9:05 p.m. but stayed around until about 9:30, talking to various officers. He told several he was going to walk home because it was good for him.

Apparently he walked instead to his car, which had been parked and locked on Vancouver near Cook. Somehow he started the car and he was driving it north at about 10:45 when the collision occurred on a curve at the entrance to Goldstream Park.

Stephen Alliston, 27, of Comox, driver of the other car, suffered minor cuts while his passenger, Janet Purdy, 31, of Comox, received facial cuts that will require surgery to heal. Both cars were destroyed.

An inquest is expected to

Barrett turns on Curtis 'switch'

Hugh Curtis asked his first question as a Social Credit MLA in the legislature Monday and received a barbed answer from Premier Barrett.

Curtis wanted to know if the government had ended its late-paying of bills, a source of embarrassment to the NDP since last summer. He also wanted to know what the problem had been, and why the question of slow payments had to be raised by the opposition in the first place.

At first the premier said he would take the question as notice, normally meaning a reply some time in the future. Then he said he felt he'd maybe better answer right away "because the member (Curtis) may not be in the same seat" by the time his reply was ready.

He suggested that one of the problems in keeping payments up to date was "because some people keep changing address as often as others change political parties."

He added that all bills would be up to date by month end.

Two full moons bracket best weather October

Two full moons in the same month proved a good omen because Greater Victorians enjoyed the most pleasant October on record.

The weather office recorded 206.3 hours of sunshine, well ahead of previous high of 188 hours, set in 1952.

Mean temperature for the month was 52.3 degrees, and the .89 inches of rainfall amounted to the least during an October since 1911.

The full moons came Oct. 1 and 31.

Couple looks for liberators in 1945

A New Zealand couple who entertained Canadian servicemen in Holland during the liberation of The Netherlands in 1945, are visiting Canada and seeking out their wartime guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Aalders of Auckland, formerly of Hilversum, Holland, are travelling across Canada from Halifax where they arrived July 5, and have already tracked down five of their "boys".

They are particularly interested in finding Larry Britton, formerly of Turner Street, Victoria. Anyone knowing his whereabouts has been asked to contact N. F. Wilson, 4608 Grassmere, Burnaby, phone 437-4391.

The Aalders are due to arrive in Vancouver by train today.

Activity centre nears combined operation

With purchase of a site on Vernon Avenue, Saanich, plans are advancing for the Greater Victoria Activity Centre which will provide combined facilities for many of Greater Victoria's handicapped groups.

These groups, now working in individual quarters in the area, will have a single location in which the community's handicapped can meet for therapy and companionship and use specially-equipped workshops.

"This is," says Floyd Fairclough, centre president, "a great day for the many people who have worked so hard and long to realize the project."

Land for the $1,200,000 centre was acquired from Saanich municipality for $89,870, with funds made available from pledges by the Greater Victoria municipalities and an advance payment of $25,000 by the Multiple Sclerosis Society from its total pledge of $100,000.

Plans drawn by architect John di Castri will be presented at the annual meeting of Activity Centre Society on Nov. 21.

Hemorrhoids can itch, burn, swell and hurt something awful. That's why you'll welcome New Anusol Plus.

If you've ever really suffered from hemorrhoids, you know the kind of relief you'd like to be getting from the medication that you use.

Fast pain relief, for one thing. New Anusol Plus relieves your hemorrhoid pain almost as soon as you apply it.

And Anusol Plus numbs the maddening itch that so often comes with hemorrhoids. For that burning sensation, it contains a soothing, cooling emollient.

There's even a gentle decongestant that works to reduce the swelling and thus the inflammation.

And while New Anusol Plus works quickly to ease your discomfort, two soothing antiseptic agents are acting to curb infection—thus giving your hemorrhoids a better chance to heal.

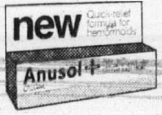

One other thing. Since treating your hemorrhoids can sometimes be painful in itself, new Anusol Plus now comes in a silky-smooth cream. Even when spread on inflamed and tender areas, it goes on very easily. And, since the relief it gives lasts for hours, you don't have to apply it so often.

How do we know what you look for in a hemorrhoid medication? Because we've taken the time to find out the answers from hundreds of hemorrhoid sufferers just like you.

For relief from your hemorrhoid symptoms, use new Anusol Plus, in cream or suppository form.

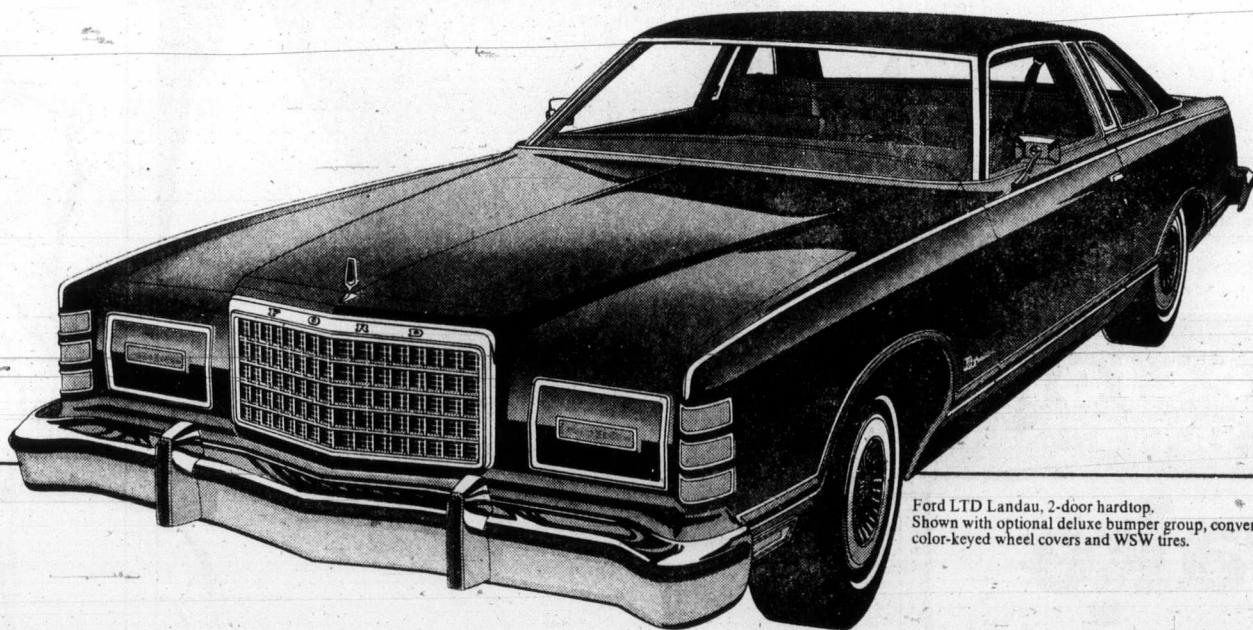

Sold at pharmacies only, it's a hemorrhoid medication that does what you want it to do.

Yen for a geisha? She could use a million or two

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan's economic recession has spread to a new and pretty class of victims.

They are Tokyo's geisha girls and night-club hostesses, many of whom enjoyed incomes of a million yen ($3,333) or more per month during Japan's recent boom.

Now the weekly news magazine Shukan Bunshun quotes bar owners and the "mama-sans" of geisha houses as saying business has fallen to the lowest level since the depression days of the 1930s.

With companies slashing expense accounts, fewer big spenders are appearing in the cabarets, and tips are going down. Wealthy men who keep the geishas and night-club hostesses as mistresses are short of cash. Many are giving up their girls until times get better, or at least slashing the girls' allowances.

Hostesses in the more expensive bars and night clubs of Ginza and Akasaka are paid wages ranging from $100 down to about $65 a night. They also profit from tips.

In addition, many have regular "arrangements" for sharing an apartment with a wealthy patron for allowances reported to range up to $1,750 a month. The girl usually pays the rent, which takes about 20 per cent of her allowance, the magazine said.

Geishas are traditional Japanese entertainers. Geishas wear kimonos and employ traditional Japanese hair styles. They also play old Japanese musical instruments, and entertain customers with Japanese dances.

In the postwar era, many ambitious girls have found quicker access to wealthy men by signing on as hostesses in night clubs. The geisha profession has had trouble getting new recruits in recent years.

Among some Japanese businessmen, keeping a geisha or bar hostess is a status symbol. It displays success, rather like getting a Rolls Royce or buying an expensive villa.

Business entertaining, without wives, has always been a well-developed feature of Japanese economic life.

14 million blackbirds

Army plans bird deaths

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. army has scheduled a mass blackbird killing program in Kentucky and Tennessee this week despite objections from an environmental group that it won't eliminate the birds and may harm the rest of the environment.

In a rerun of Alfred Hitchcock's film, The Birds, or the real life concentration of two million blackbirds at Graceham, Md., last spring, an estimated 14 million blackbirds have descended on the area around Ft. Campbell, Ky., and Milan Army Ammunition Plant, Tenn.

A spokesman said the army would use aircraft to spray the birds with tergitol, "an environmentally harmless, biodegradable detergent." Tergitol dissolves the protective oils in the birds' feathers so they will freeze to death when the temperature dips below 45 degrees.

The Environmental Defense Fund, a private group, has threatened to take the army to court because of failure to file an environmental impact statement. The army said that was true but that it has a letter from the council on environmental quality saying no statement was necessary.

An EDF official said the council wrote the army last spring saying an impact statement was unnecessary only for a one-night experiment with tergitol around Ft. Campbell.

The army claims the birds are a danger to health, crops and aviation. It said three soldiers had come down with histoplasmosis, a lung disease carried by the blackbirds. It said it would start its attack on the birds Wednesday, or as soon afterwards as weather conditions allow.

The EDF said the army itself had created the problem by planting thousands of acres of pines around many bases. It said they are so tightly packed that they prevent the growth of underbrush. Such groves attract the blackbirds because rodents and other wildlife that might attack the blackbirds cannot live in tightly packed pine groves.

If the groves were thinned and underbrush planted, the blackbirds would be discouraged from flocking, the EDF said.

The Graceham blackbird swarm was broken up after the repeated use of firecrackers and loudspeakers broadcasting jarring loud noises. The birds at Graceham also flocked to a pine grove and that grove has subsequently been thinned by one-third.

Women to join peace troops

CAIRO (UPI) — Defence Minister James Richardson says Canada plans to introduce 50 women into the United Nations peace-keeping forces in the Middle East.

Speaking to newsmen at the start of his three-day official visit to Egypt, Richardson said the women, the first U.N. contingent of female personnel to come to the Middle East zone, will be stationed at the Suez Canal city of Ismailia in a few months.

"We plan early in the new year to send 50 female personnel to serve in the Middle East," Richardson said. "We are making the arrangements now. The women who join the United Nations force will be teletype operators, supply technicians, medical assistants, communications and clerical workers and a number of others."

The Canadians, representing the largest of the United Nations Emergency Force teams based in Ismailia, have a policy of "widening the number of jobs available to women" in the armed forces, Richardson said.

Richardson said he came to Cairo "primarily to see the Canadian personnel serving with the United Nations."

He said he would travel to Ismailia, 70 miles north east of Cairo to see the conditions under which the Canadian contingent works and what they do.

 12:45 — Story of a Woman (1968 soap, slick but shallow). Bibi Andersson, Robert Stack, James Farentino. I hear a woman could be Connecticut governor after today's U.S. voting: good — 8.
 1:00 p.m. — The Trap (1954 par 1959 gangsters). Richard Widmark, Tina Louise. Time could govern me anywhere, even Connecticut — 11.
 7:30 — The Gun (new documentary-type drama). No names in this story of a pistol's travels — 8.
 8:05 — The Film-Flam Man (often good 1967 anti-establishment comedy). George Scott, Michael Sarrazin. Mr. Scott at his peak — 7.
 8:30 — Shadow of a Doubt (terrific 1943 Hitchcock). Joseph Cotton, Teresa Wright. Hitchcock's favorite Hitchcock, and mine — 13.
 9:00 — King Kong (1923 special-effects smasher). Robert Armstrong, Bruce Cabot and Fay Wray, who screams the impossible scream — 10.
 9:30 — The Unsinkable Molly Brown (1964 Debra Reynolds). She may not be down yet but surely it's due soon — 7.
 11:30 — Act of Repraisal (only fair 1965 Cyprus-war drama). Ina Balin, Jeremy Brent. Not exactly your time biggies — 12.
 12:00 — Two Women (1961 Sophia Loren. Oscar-winning Italian title that this might be Sophia's story but it actually is a war drama — 2).
 12:00 — What Ever Happened to Baby Jane? (dandy 1962 Bette Davis horror). With Joan Crawford and beautiful Victor Buono — 5.
 12:00 — Sitting Bull (hokey 1954 western). J. Carroll Naish, Dale Robertson. No, Matilda, it's not the story of a rising politician — 10.
 12:00 — Tell Them Willie Boy Is Here (good 1969 Indian drama). Robert Blake, Robert Redford. As good as Sitting Bull isn't — 8.
 1:55 a.m. — Shakti Gun in the West (1968 Doc Knotts). Based on Bob Hope's Paleface but paler — 8.
 2:35 — The Night Fighters (good 1960 Irish-rebel drama). One of the best of Mitchum's better films and with first-rate music — 8.

7:00 p.m. — Philippe Entremont joins the Winnipeg orchestra for a Prokofiev concerto and the second Sibelius symphony — CBU-FM (105.7).
8:00 — CBC Tuesday Night essays the Lilith-like drama Women in the Attic by Len Peterson — CBU (690).
8:30 — Western Canada hockey, New Westminster at Victoria — CJVI (900).

THE ACES

James T. Barnes of Southport, N.C., sent me a hand recently which is both interesting and instructive. The problem involved finding the winning play in a case a diamond game. And in the case the bidding didn't offer enough clues, I was invited to look at all four hands before my choice of plays to the first trick.

Would you like to try your luck? But before you start, let me warn you that the solution is not only interesting, it is also a bit tricky.

After West's lead of the spade king it is obvious that the danger lies in East's gaining the lead to attack the heart king. Therefore, declarer's hearts must be discarded on dummy's clubs. But how does one go about doing this?

The winning plan is to duck the spade king and if West continues with spades, duck again and ruff with an intermediate trump. On the three of diamonds dummy's three is played, and a high diamond to dummy's king places the lead in dummy.

Now that West has no more trumps it is safe to play clubs. The club queen is led and if East covers, the ace wins and it's all over. A club to dummy provides two heart discards and 11 tricks are scored.

If East ducks the club queen (as he should), declarer wins the normal finesse and then switches to a ruffing finesse. Dummy's spade ace is played and the club ace is discarded to allow repeated ruffing finessses through East. East may duck or cover as he wishes but declarer can always ruff the club king and use the carefully saved trump four to cross to Answer: Four clubs. This cue bid shows first round control and invites North to cue bid his controls. South must find out if North has high club honors or high diamond honors. A Blackwood bid would not help unless North has all three missing aces.

New Nanaimo city urged to 'go slow'

By FRED CURRIE

Columnist Correspondent

NANAIMO — City council, which will take over administration of the newly amalgamated city Jan. 1, must begin its first term of office on the right foot, says a veteran of Nanaimo district public life.

Mrs. Ada Howden of Wellington, who has served as a trustee on the Wellington Water District board for many years, and as a regional district board director since it was established in B.C. said Monday that negative thinking about parochialism brought on by the ward system should be stopped immediately.

"We will be all one city soon, and we must start thinking and working as one city. Forget this parochial garbage. The ward system has been proved at the regional district level where directors are working for the good of an entire area and not their own electoral district. The challenge has been met there and the same can hold true at the city council level."

On the basis of the people who have announced they will run for council, I think the new city will be in good hands," she said.

Mrs. Howden said she was a little surprised at the outcome of the vote. Particularly the strength of the opposition to amalgamation shown in the Wellington area, where nearly 50 per cent of those eligible voted, and where about 75 per cent voted against the merger.

Mrs. Howden said if Lantzville had been included in the new city, the vote would have failed.

"It is obvious to me that nearly all of the 250 or so voters there would have voted against the merger, and that would have been enough to defeat it," she said.

Looking ahead, Mrs. Howden is concerned about certain aspects of life in the improvement districts and how they will be handled by the new city council.

"There is a real job to be done with regard to the volunteer firemen in the districts. They are a dedicated group and I would hate to see any of them lost."

The restructuring committee recommended in its final report that each district firehall be manned 24 hours a day by a small group of full-time firemen, to be augmented by volunteers for firefighting.

Another of the major considerations affecting the new council is the question of conversion of all districts to water meters, she said.

In many areas, water is paid for on a flat rate. The city, on the other hand, is metered and water charges are based on usage.

"I hope the new council will not find it necessary to spend half a million dollars to install water meters — immediately. I think the change can be phased in, perhaps over a five-year period, to allow residents time to get used to the idea."

"There are methods of handling these difficult problems which will not cause hard feelings and make people regret the amalgamation."

Mayor Frank Ne Monday was still urging a "go slow" policy on the changes to come in the city administration, just as he did before the vote. Ne said earlier that rushing into these changes would "create chaos."

Ne said the result of the vote here Saturday, which produced a slim margin of 52 per cent in favor of the merger, shows that a large group of voters are concerned about taxes.

"For this reason, I feel the new council will have to keep a tight rein on the budget while recognizing that all the people in the new city are going to ask for and be in need of additional improvements and services. The result presents a very challenging picture for the new council, who must work to try to keep taxes down while satisfying the needs of the people."

"We must look to the positive side and do our best to ensure that the fiscal policy of council is fair to all."

The mayor said there will be problems for new aldermen — and not always easy ones." But, he added, "I am still an optimist. We should go into this thing gradually and I'm sure we will meet the challenge successfully."

The old city of Nanaimo will cease to exist on Dec. 31, which coincides with the end of the city's 100th anniversary year. The new city comes into being the following day.

God, beer get equal billing

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP)

The St. Louis County planning commission agreed with a Baptist minister's contention that God should be given "equal treatment billing with Budweiser" and recommended a measure that permits church signs to be as large as commercial advertising signs.

Hall of fame honor planned

NEW YORK (AP)

The National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame will honor its 1974 gold medal recipient, Gerald Zornow, chairman of the board of Eastman Kodak, at the annual Hall of Fame dinner Dec. 10.

$165,322 paid for Ming bowl

HONG KONG (AP)

Chinese ceramic art objects fetched $1.5 million in the first day of a five-day auction by Sotheby Parke Bernet. High price for the auction was $165,322 for a Ming bowl.

UBC harriers keep Canada West title

University of B.C. harriers successfully defended their team title Saturday in the annual Canada West University Athletic Association championships here.

Paced by Victorian John Wheeler, the UBC men's team raced to an easy victory on the 500-metre (about six miles) course at University of Victoria, finishing in the first four positions.

Wheeler, who covered the distance in 30 minutes, 44 seconds, was followed by Chris White, Gerry Lister, Duncan Klatt, and Brian Spielman of the University of Calgary. Jim Thorne was top finisher for the under-strength UVic team, placing 13th in the field of 30.

In the team standings, UBC counted only 18 points on the reverse scoring system. University of Saskatchewan was second with 61 points followed by University of Calgary (75), and the University of Alberta (90). UVic did not enter a team.

In the 3400-metre (approx. 3.5 miles) women's race, UBC runners finished 1-2-3 and scored only six points in team standings. University of Alberta was second with 17 points and UVic third with 27.

Sheila Currie placed first with a time of 12 minutes 23 seconds, finishing ahead of teammates Leslie Stubbs and Linda Rosetti. Sue Hoffart of the University of Alberta placed fourth and Bev Cox of UVic fifth on the 15-runner field.

Champion harriers lead team victories

Individual points champions Sharon Young of Esquimalt and Tom Griffin of Mount Douglas led their teams to victory Monday in the next-to-last meet of the Victoria inter-high school cross-country league.

Miss Young won her sixth straight race, covering the 1.7 mile course around Gorge Kinsmen Park in eight minutes and 50 seconds while Griffin, winner of six of seven events, placed first in the accompanying 3.7 mile boys' race, clocking in at 16 minutes, 55 seconds.

Julie Rainey of Belmont placed second to Miss Young and Sharon Docherty of Esquimalt was third. Defending champion Ulla Hansen of Mount Douglas was fourth and Debbie Scott of Claremont fifth.

Esquimalt won the team honors with 36 points under the reverse scoring system, Claremont was second with 56, Mount Douglas third at 69 and Victoria High fourth with 87 points.

Brian Blamey of Oak Bay finished second to Griffin, followed by Dave Cox of Victoria High, Kevin Kendall of Mount Douglas, and Bob Noble of Esquimalt.

The league winds up next Tuesday.

Esposito and Orr share scoring lead

A lot that has been unexpected has happened in the early part of the National Hockey League schedule but one thing remains constant — Phil Esposito and Bobby Orr head the individual point race.

Esposito, winner of the Ross Trophy in five of the last six seasons, and Orr, going for a sixth consecutive 100-point season, are tied at the top with 21 points from their first 11 games. Esposito leads in goals with 13 and Orr in assists with 16.

Closest to the Boston stars are Jim Pappin and Ivan Boldyrev of the Chicago Black Hawks, who have 19 and 18 points, respectively. Two second-season pros, Denis Potvin of New York Islanders and Tom Lysiak of Atlanta Flames, are tied for 16 points.

City hoop clubs win and lose

VANCOUVER — Victoria clubs had mixed success in Senior "A" Women's Inter-City Basketball League play on the weekend.

Saanich Westerners downed University of B.C. Jayvees, 55-31, on Saturday, then dropped a last-second, 61-60 decision to Vancouver BuzzBombs, the reigning Canadian champs, on Sunday.

And Victoria Saints, beaten 55-22 by the BuzzBombs on Saturday, came back to stop UBC, 58-43, on Sunday.

Angie Doble led Westerners on Sunday, scoring 22 points, and Mary Coutts added 12. Wendy Grant netted 14 for BuzzBombs.

Mari-Anne Longmore counted 28 points for the Saints on Sunday and Jill Smith contributed 10.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

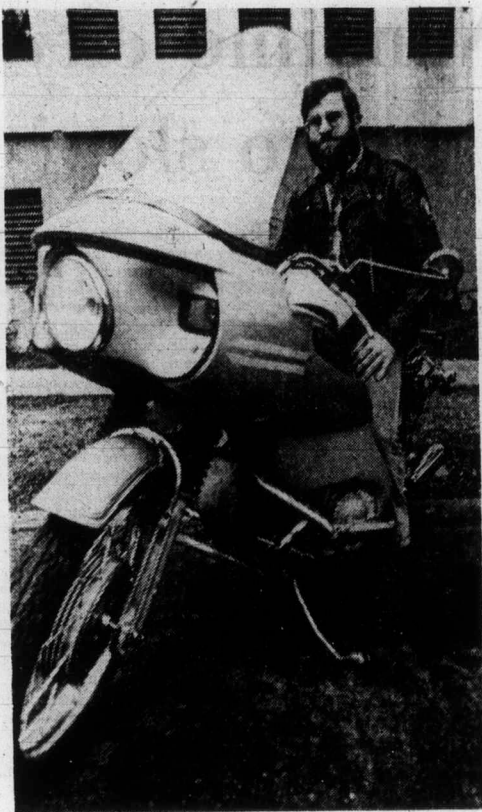

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale, start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

Lavertu rests after trip

Ethnic mix in Canada 'really works'

By DON GAIN
Colonist Reporter

A young French-Canadian from Victoria, just back from a coast-to-coast motorcycle tour of Canada, believes in federalism but would hate to see Quebec lose its culture.

Claude Lavertu, bilingual and bicultural member of a French-Canadian family who chose to live in an English-speaking province, believes both are possible.

Main impression from his trip is that Canada's mixture of ethnic groups really works as a country.

Each province and each region has its own groupings of people, each different from the others, he said in an interview.

"There are lots of differences and that's good and it ends up being the Canadian mosaic," he said.

Lavertu, 26, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jules Lavertu, 1265 Rockland, left Victoria last June 14. After 3½ months and 15,430 miles he came back.

He travelled east through Canada but, returning, he took excursions north and south to visit family and friends and to tour the northern U.S.

He'd been planning the trip ever since he saw Spain and Portugal by motorcycle two years ago.

Business insists on vote

There was a lot of talk about "basic human rights and the Boston Tea Party" at Victoria city hall Monday.

The talking was done by Victoria businessmen, downtown property owners who can't vote in the Victoria municipal election because they don't reside in the city.

They voiced their dissatisfaction with that rule at a meeting of the Downtown Business Advisory Committee.

P. D. P. Holmes, of Pemberton Holmes Ltd., told the meeting that property owners should have the right to vote in the municipality in which they have property, regardless of where they live.

"If we can't vote, we have no right and no representation at city hall. That's taxation without representation and that's what the Boston Tea Party was all about," Holmes said.

Others called the regulation "an injustice and denial of a basic human right."

Ald. Sam Bawlf, committee chairman, said he would ask city council to endorse the merchants' stand and refer the matter to the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

Until two years ago, non-resident property owners had the right to vote. That practice was ended by the NDP government.

In the case of Victoria, about 300 non-resident property owners lost their votes when the new regulations went into effect.

Busy program

Silkscreen course slated at galley

The Art Gallery of Greater Victoria continues to be a place of almost perpetual motion, with many activities going on weekly.

Wednesday night, writer-filmmaker Bill Thomas presents a specially-prepared, illustrated lecture on the life, work and social circles of the English artist Sir Edwin Landseer.

At 8 p.m. Friday, Lenny

Lipton, independent filmmaker and author, will show his films Children of the Golden West and Hilltop Nursery.

Saturday and Sunday, from 9:30 a.m. until noon and from 1 to 3:30 p.m., Canadian watercolorist, printmaker and teacher Mollie Mitchell will hold a silkscreen workshop for beginners, with registration $12 for the general public, $10 for gallery members, students and pensioners.

The gallery, at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, will present the world premiere of the composition, The Anatomy of Melancholy, by noted musician-composer Rudolph Komouros of University of Victoria's music department.

This composition was created for magnetic tape and one performer — in this case, Komouros himself.

In addition, the current exhibition of Fired Sculpture, by 16 Canadian artists, continues, in addition to selections from the gallery's own works.

France crew paid, leaves

PARIS (AP) — The crew of the 66,347-ton France was paid off and the largest of the great liners on the transatlantic run was formally taken out of service. Plans for two gala crossings this month to mark the ship's departure from the run after 12 years were cancelled after the France's crew went on strike, forcing it to anchor Sept. 11 outside Le Havre.

Tory chief

Named president of Esquimalt-Saanich Progressive Conservative Association is Allen Houghton, above, 36, business administrator of Art Gallery of Greater Victoria. Other officers are Pat Crofton, first vice-president; Arnold Lane, Edith Gunning and John MacVie, vice-presidents; Irene Block, membership secretary; Adele Hogg, treasurer, and Libby Mowat, secretary.

Marine base awaits start

The first phase of a $10.5 million marine base to be built by the federal transport ministry on Victoria's harbor is expected to start later this month.

The construction site is the old Victoria Machinery Depot's Dallas Road yard, and the first phase will be to demolish the existing wharves and buildings. The second phase before start of construction will be to remove the "land-based buildings."

He said building of the new complex will begin early next summer, and "if all goes according to plan it should be completed by late 1977."

Dow plants in Korea?

SEOUL (AP) — The South Korean government has tentatively agreed to Dow Chemical of the United States to invest $204.8 million for construction of four petrochemical plants in Korea, it has been announced. The four plants would include an electrolytic refining plant, a low-density polyethylene plant, an ethylene dichloride plant and a vinyl chloride monomer plant. Approval is expected before the end of the year.

Bennett slaps 'supercrats'

New marketing board legislation being considered by the Legislature is just an expansion of an old solution that doesn't work, Opposition Leader Bill Bennett said Monday.

Marketing boards discourage increased production and the new oversight board being established by the government will provide an opportunity for the NDP to get jobs for "fellow-travellers and friends."

Social Credit members tried unsuccessfully to have the bill tabled for six months, to give the standing committee on agriculture a chance to study the operation and problems of marketing boards.

"Rather than look for real solutions," the government is just adding to "the same old system," Bennett charged.

The NDP is setting up another board of "supercrats," Bennett said, a theme that was picked up later by Don Phillips (SC—South Peace River) and other opposition MLAs.

He told the house that assurances should be given that producers will be in a majority on the B.C. Marketing Board, although Bennett had previously complained that the legislation would give producers more power than other sectors of the economy.

Phillips predicted that some NDP candidates defeated in the 1972 election would be appointed to the board, which will have power to amend or veto any policies made by other marketing agencies.

The new board is "a slap in the face to every producer, every man who ever sat on a marketing board. The government is telling them they can't manage their own affairs," Phillips said.

Agriculture Minister David Stupich defended the act and suggested Social Credit members were asking for the six-month delay so they could decide how to vote.

Members of the 10 provincial marketing boards have had a chance over the last eight months to discuss the legislation, Stupich said. The new board, which will have consumer representation on it, doesn't represent an abandonment by the NDP of the principle of marketing boards protecting producers, he added.

Community appointments to the board will give the public a chance to learn about marketing board practices so non-producers will understand that producers have to receive a reasonable income.

'Forged' anti-Lawson letter stirs house

Forged letters, a supposedly secret report on development of the B.C. Sheriff's office and the looming confrontation between automobile insurance agents and ICBC sparked the question period in the Legislature Monday.

The forgery case was brought to the attention of MLAs by Liberal leader David Anderson, who asked Premier Barrett to confirm that a libellous letter had been sent to Snor Ed Lawson on the premier's official stationery over the alleged signature of his administrative assistant Arnie Van Campen.

In asking the question, Anderson stated that the letter was clearly a forgery "but I would like to know what action you are taking?"

Barrett acknowledged that such a letter had been received by Lawson, president of the Teamsters Joint Council in B.C., that it was a forgery and that the matter had been turned over to the RCMP.

The letter makes scurrilous references to the Teamsters' Union, its former president James Hoffa, and former U.S. president Richard Nixon. It also refers to the alleged financial support of the last NDP election campaign by the Teamsters.

Anderson, interviewed after making the letter public, said there was no doubt in his mind that the signature was forged and that the contents of the letter were libellous and untrue.

He said he was happy the premier was taking the matter seriously and he hoped there would soon be an arrest in the case.

The letter was dated Oct. 29, 1974, and appears to be a continuation of a series of similar letters attacking Lawson.

Opposition Leader William Bennett (S.C.—South Okanagan) asked Attorney-General Alex Macdonald to comment on the future relationship between the RCMP and the rapidly expanding Sheriff's staff.

Waving what he termed a secret report, Bennett asked if the contents of the document had been approved by Macdonald and if any legislation was being prepared which would see the RCMP and the Sheriff's staff more closely allied.

Macdonald said he was unaware of any legislation being prepared but agreed to examine the report and provide answers at a later date.

The report, dated Oct. 21, 1974, was sent to all deputy sheriffs in B.C. and outlines procedures for training programs and duties and the ultimate strength of the Sheriff's staff by March, 1975.

As of Oct. 1, sheriffs and deputy sheriffs totalled 225 in B.C. By next March the staff will be up to 320 and by Sept. 30, 1975, should reach its full complement of 440.

The report contains several references to the RCMP and to the Vancouver City Police in the training and development sections but, other than references to the taking over of various functions now performed by the federal force, does not appear to indicate anything more.

It does, however, refer to a new Sheriff's Act for the province which, the report states, should be in draft form by the spring of next year.

"At the present time Sheriff L. F. Hodgson, the assistant to the director, is researching the sheriff's acts from the other nine provinces and it is planned to have a draft of a new Sheriff's Act for British Columbia prepared by the spring of 1975," the report states.

Newell Morrison (S.C.—Victoria) asked Transport Minister Robert Strachan what he intended to do about the Friday deadline given by insurance agents for the withdrawal of their services if the Insurance Corporation of B.C.

does not meet their demands for higher fees.

Strachan said he had not received a copy of the resolution passed by 435 insurance agents Monday morning and was therefore not in a position to comment.

Morrison asked if Strachan had a contingency plan should the agents withdraw their services on Friday. "They have a written contract to provide their services throughout 1975," Strachan said.

"They claim the corporation has broken those agreements," retorted Morrison.

"ICBC will not be killed," said Strachan. "It will continue to operate."

Overnight in Saanich Inlet

Drifting boys found safe

Two Saanich boys with little knowledge of engines were found safe Monday morning in Saanich Inlet just as a search that had gone on almost all night was being expanded into a major effort.

Central Saanich police and John Giesbrecht, 21, son of Brentwood Boat Rentals owner David Giesbrecht, said Robert Willott, 14, of 3032 Tillicum, and Mitchell Cory, 15, of 2853 Colquitz, left the boat firm at about 3:30 p.m. Sunday in a rented 15-footer.

They had planned to fish on Saanich Inlet toward Patricia Bay and Deep Cove and did not return by dark. John Giesbrecht said the boat firm always sends out a speedboat at dark if any boats are unreported.

He and friend Douglas Lindal went out shortly after 5 p.m. looking for two rented boats. One returned at 6:15 but there was no sign of the two boys.

Young Giesbrecht continued searching until about 10 p.m., when police were notified. Willott's father phoned soon after to report his son missing but it was too dark and foggy by then to get a helicopter.

Giesbrecht and Lindal were out from 11:15 p.m. Sunday to 3:15 a.m. Monday, combing the shorelines with a spotlight and travelling to slow speeds. They quit when their gas ran low and got some rest before a major search at first light.

It was just starting when Pat Miles, son of Central Saanich Police Chief Robert Miles, saw a drifting boat halfway between Bamerton and Willis Point as he scanned the waters by telescope from his home.

Giesbrecht sped out to rescue the boys, who said their engine had conked out late Sunday afternoon. They couldn't start it and slept much of the night as the boat drifted toward Bamerton from Patricia Bay.

They said they were neither cold nor hungry, had some light food with them, and reported the searching speedboat had passed them once during the night near the airport.

Giesbrecht said the 15-footer was towed, back to Brentwood Boat Rentals, where the engine was started on the sixth pull.

Officers to keep riding

City policemen can rest their legs for a while yet. Victoria Police commission has made no decision on a proposal that would have officers walking beats in some neighborhoods.

Mayor Peter Pollen, chairman of the commission, said on the weekend that the proposal is still under study and its future depended upon the availability of officers.

When the plan, that emphasizes more personal contact between the police and the community, was announced in August, only James Bay and Victoria West were slated for the special patrol.

But the mayor thinks all districts should share in the plan, which would require the use of 25 officers.

"It's also a question of money," Pollen said, in explaining why the program had not yet started.

NAMES in the NEWS

Slayings bring chief to television screen

MOSCOW — It took a wide-spread crime scare to do it, but Moscow's police chief finally resorted to the unthinkable — he went on television to admit his men have failed to catch a killer stalking the Soviet capital.

Police Chief Vadim Samokhvalov made a rare television appearance to tell Muscovites his men are hard at work trying to end a series of muggings and murders in the city.

The chief, in an unusual, American-style, crime announcement, said two women were slain last month during the spate of muggings and police have yet to solve the cases.

The Soviet Union usually suppresses crime news, saying the reports fail to provide ideological messages. But Samokhvalov said he decided to go before the cameras to calm Muscovites worried by word-of-mouth reports of the murders.

BOSTON — Senator Edward Kennedy, in a letter published in the Boston Globe, said the newspaper unfairly used unidentified sources in articles it published recently concerning his involvement in the death of Mary Jo Kopechne on Chappaquiddick Island five years ago.

"On several occasions, the articles made use of unnamed sources — at one point for example, they say I intended to take Mary Jo Kopechne for a walk on the beach instead of the ferry at another point, to say I considered a plan to have Mr. (Joseph Gargan) (Kennedy's cousin) take the blame for the tragedy," Kennedy wrote.

"These charges are ugly, untrue and grossly unfair."

ADRIAN, Mich. — John Skopec will have quite an edge on other ticket holders in this week's Michigan lottery drawing. He'll have 2,000 tickets. Skopec, who won $25 in an October weekly drawing, has been declared the 2,000,000th winner of a lottery prize, and was given 2,000 free lottery tickets.

VANCOUVER — James Neil Young, 31, was charged with attempted murder following the stabbing of a minister in a mission. Rev. John Esau, of the Grace Mission, was wounded in the stomach, police said, after he refused to give a man his welfare money three days early. Esau is recovering from his wound.

EDMONTON — An 18-year-old partially-blind Edmonton youth who won a jumping championship at a horse show was among about 160 Alberta citizens given achievement awards. Randy Hogle was competing against 34 sighted riders on his 15-year old horse Blaze which he says is aware that his rider is partially blind. The high school student plays both piano and saxophone and plans to study law or writing despite difficulty in obtaining books in braille. Prender Peter Lougheed presented the awards.

Murder suspect arrested

DELTA (CP) — Elery Steven Long, 29, of Delta, charged with murder punishable by death, in connection with the fatal shooting of a policeman, was remanded Monday to Dec. 16.

Long was charged following the fatal shooting Saturday of Staff Sergeant Ronald McKay, 47, of the Delta municipal police.

McKay was dead on arrival at hospital after he was shot once in the chest with a shotgun while investigating a disturbance call in nearby Tsawwassen area, 20 miles south of Vancouver and about half a mile from the Canada-United States border.

He and another officer had first gone to a disturbance call at a service station and investigation led them to a nearby house.

Police said a man carrying what appeared to be a shotgun left the house. A police spokesman said there was a shot and McKay was struck.

The spokesman said McKay lay wounded for about an hour before being taken to hospital because "we thought the guy was still in the house."

were found guilty of first degree murder in the slaying of country music star David (Stringbean) Akeman and his wife. Criminal court Judge Allen Cornelius sentenced the pair to 99-year terms. They would be eligible for parole after serving 30 years.

CHICAGO — Martha Mitchell says rumors of her excessive drinking were spread by members of the Richard Nixon administration, but that a talk show host's question on her drinking is not what started her crying after the show this week. The wife of former attorney general John Mitchell said she began crying because "at the end of the show I was asked about going on a lecture tour and I started telling about getting an invitation to deliver a speech — that is to preach — at the largest synagogue in America, and that made me emotional just thinking about it and I started crying."

Bargaining in glare of flames

MONTREAL (CP) — Many Montrealers say the 30-hour strike by 2,400 firemen was one of the most frightening periods in the city's history.

For three nights — Thursday, Friday and Saturday — the sky glowed red in areas where fires burned out of control. Some could be seen from offices where efforts were being made to end the strike.

The firemen, prohibited by law from going on strike, finally agreed to a settlement early Sunday following the personal intervention of Premier Robert Bourassa.

Mayor Jean Drapeau said the city would pay the firemen the $750 cost-of-living bonus they sought, but it would be considered an annex to a still-to-be-negotiated 1975 contract.

The firemen wanted their present contract renegotiated to make the $750 part of their 1974 salary scale. The city refused on grounds that other unions would demand renegotiation of 1974 contracts.

The city agreed to stop injunction proceedings against the firemen's union, but will not drop legal action against individual firemen for damage to equipment during months leading up to the strike.

In a television interview Sunday, Drapeau suggested that citizens consult their law-

Rent ceiling goes to 10.6 per cent

By JIM HUME
Colonist Reporter

The provincial government will boost the 8 per cent rental ceiling by 2.6 per cent on Jan. 1, 1975, and lift the ceiling entirely from new rental accommodation.

Under the Landlord and Tenant Amendment Act, introduced in the Legislature late Monday the rental ceiling will rise from 8 per cent to 10.6 per cent on existing accommodation, providing the landlord informs his tenants of the increase before the end of November.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, who introduced the amendments, said he "didn't expect to come out smelling like a rose. If I had tried to please everyone, I wouldn't have been doing my job. I'm a cabinet minister, and that's where the buck stops."

Macdonald said the five-year exemption from rental controls for new accommodation was designed to encourage new building. He added that, as the usual mortgage term for such buildings is five years, "we are advised that there is little pressure to increase rents during that period."

He said the government wanted to encourage new construction and at the same time protect middle and low-income tenants from unjustified increases. "The policy embodied in these amendments will achieve that end," he said.

Increase for repairs

The specific recommendations in the revised legislation are:

- No rental limit on new rental accommodation for the first five years.

- Increases on existing accommodation 10.6 per cent a year, plus an allowance for major renovations. The allowance is limited to 12 per cent per year of the cost of the renovations. (A $1,000 renovation job would permit a rent increase of $120 a year).

- A rent review commission to hear appeals from tenants in limited cases and to continue to study all aspects of rental problems. The commission will report to the legislature a year from now.

- The three-months notice provision for rent increases will be waived for rents coming into effect January and February, providing notice is in tenants' hands before the end of this month.

- Owners of mobile homes may apply to the rent review commission for exemption.

- Security deposits will be limited to half of one month's rent, and will be held by the landlord. The landlord will credit the tenant with 8 per cent interest per year on the deposit and, when a tenancy ends, the landlord will repay the tenant the deposit with interest or forward it to the B.C. Rentalsman-in-the case of a dispute.

Macdonald said the 10.6 per cent ceiling "represents a figure which will be sufficient to meet anticipated increases in operating costs over the next year."

Landlords in the province have claimed they required a 20 per cent increase just to stay even with spiralling costs of fuel and maintenance.

Tenants have argued that even the 8 per cent ceiling was high and there should be no further increases.

Under the new amendments, a tenant is advised not

Don't fool your frog with mating call

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Owners will be allowed to encourage their pet frogs with pleading, whistling and singing in the South African Frog Olympics next Saturday.

But hissing like a snake, imitating mating calls and lighting firecrackers are forbidden.

Imitating a mating cry "subjects the frog to moral cruelty and severe disappointment and is most strongly deprecated," the rules say.

B.C. returns to old system

The provincial government confirmed Monday that it is abandoning any attempt to bring assessments in B.C. up to 100 per cent of market value by 1975.

A special bill to amend the Assessment Act, passed last spring, was introduced in the Legislature for first reading late Monday afternoon. In effect, the bill suspends section 24, the clause requiring land and improvements to be assessed at actual value.

In turn the amendment, when approved by the Legislature, means that assessments for 1975 will be frozen at the 1974 level.

B.C. Rail traffic stopped

VANCOUVER (UPI) — British Columbia Railway operations were partially shut down Monday after some members of the union's striking shopcraft unions set up picket lines.

About 85 of the 550 strikers from five unions began picketing the railway Sunday at Prince George, and other workers refused to cross the lines.

B.C. Rail passenger service between Vancouver and Prince George was also shut down.

The workers have been on strike since Friday, but no pickets were reported in other parts of the province, where the railway, owned by the provincial government, provides passenger and freight service.

Owners, tenants all up in arms

By JON FERRY
Colonist Reporter

The government's proposed rental legislation has succeeded only in bringing to the boil the mounting discontent among both landlord and tenant groups in Victoria and Vancouver.

Directors of the Rental Housing Council of B.C. — which claims to represent 1,600 landlords managing 100,000 rental suites, including 12,000 in Victoria — will meet in emergency session today at noon.

Executive director Richard

Dolman told the Colonist: "It seems inevitable now that strike actions will be taken, which we deeply regret."

These "strike actions" could include landlords withholding vacant suites from the market and refusing to pay Hydr bills representing increases of more than 8 per cent.

Meanwhile, an incensed Bruce Yorke, B.C. Tenants Organization president, said his group would hold a news conference in Vancouver this morning after it had received

IRA woman bomber gets 12 life terms

WAKEFIELD, England (AP) — A 25-year-old English woman was convicted Monday of murdering 12 people by bombing an army bus last February.

Judith Teresa Ward, a member of the Irish Republican Army, was sentenced to 12 life prison sentences, to run concurrently, for the murders and 20 years in prison for causing the explosion.

Wakefield Crown Court also sentenced her to 10 years for bombing the National Defence College in Buckinghamshire and five years, to run concurrently, for bombing London's Euston train station.

She pleaded not guilty to all charges.

The slim, fair-haired woman grabbed the side of the wooden prisoner's dock as the verdicts were announced, but her expression remained unchanged as sentences were passed.

Sir George Waller, the justice, made no recommendation for a minimum time Miss Ward should remain in prison because "these offences are so heinous that no figure could be put on that would be appropriate to their gravity."

Nine soldiers returning from weekend leave were killed in the bus blast on a highway in Yorkshire in central England. The wife and two children of one of them also were killed.

Lone NDP MLA bolts ranks in overseer vote

To no one's surprise, a Social Credit motion to defer the Natural Products Marketing Act failed Tuesday, but a crack appeared in government ranks when the vote was called. (See earlier story page 32.)

Roy Cummings, (NDP) Vancouver-Little Mountain) was the only non-Socred who voted to table the bill for six months, to give the standing committee on agriculture a chance to examine the operation of marketing boards.

Debate on the bill, which will establish an overseer board with community representation, took up most of Tuesday's sitting, but when the vote on the Social Credit motion came, it lost 37-11.

Although Liberals voted with the government, they made it clear they wanted the entire bill tossed out.

Garde Gardom (L-Vancouver Point Grey) said the bill "showed not to be deferred, it should be wiped out. What we don't need in B.C. is Moscow marketing."

The Social Credit claim that a six-month delay would allow Agriculture Minister David Stupich to revise the legislation is like claiming "the that postponement of an execution is an act of compassion," Gardom added.

After the vote, Cummings said he supported the Social Credit action because the legislation "des't ensure consumer representation" on the board.

He wants half of the 10 members of the new board to be consumers, and said the government might consider such an amendment.

The NDP caucus didn't know he would vote against the government, Cummings explained, but he said the expected "only smiles" at today's caucus meeting.

Pirates raid Italian ship

Coal firms offer 40% package deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. coal industry and union negotiators, faced with a growing strike threat, were reported to have broken a 24-hour impasse in bargaining Monday night as management offered a comprehensive contract proposal.

The package, a counter-proposal to the union's latest economic demands are believed to represent a better-than-40-per-cent increase in wages and benefits over three years.

Sources said the new management offer was made shortly after negotiators for the coal operators and the United Mine Workers resumed talks at the urging of W. J. Usery, the government's chief labor mediator.

Earlier Monday Usery met separately with the top industry and union negotiators in an effort to bring the two sides together.

Democrats up for big sweep

By ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrats headed today for a 1974 election sweep that would tighten their hold on Congress and their nation's state houses. Republicans pleaded for a big party turnout to stem the tide.

President Ford, who had travelled the country for more than a month to help Republican candidates, issued an election-eve appeal to citizens to vote. His message was bipartisan in content, but Republican in significance.

Party strategists fear their supporters are so turned off by scandal and a sick economy that many of them will not vote at all.

Kick in the head, wrong university

Lost circus three-ring blunder

LONDON (UPI) — The case of the vanishing circus ended Monday when five truckloads of performing animals, jugglers and assorted performers turned up in the university town of Cambridge.

But they should have been in the university town of Oxford, where the big top had already been set up, and clowns and elephants grew impatient.

The Hoffman Circus convoy became separated during the weekend when transport manager Peter Mack was kicked in the head by a mule and had to spend a night in hospital.

In his absence, the five-truck caravan went astray from the main body of the circus on the 56-mile drive from London to Oxford.

The missing troupe included a ringmaster, his wife and son, French jugglers and trick cyclists, two elephants, two camels, six llamas, one donkey, two mules, six Shetland ponies, two palomino horses and a bison.

A rather long missing persons and animals report was flashed throughout the south of England and by midday the caravan was found at Cambridge, about 80 miles off the mark.

"We are relieved that the animals have been found," Mack said. "They are in the winter quarters of a small circus. We are very grateful to the police and press for their help. Our show in Oxford will definitely go on on Thursday."

Sugar price raised again

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Sugar Refining Co. Monday announced an increase of $4.70 a hundredweight of sugar, the second increase within a week.

On Thursday, the company announced an increase of $3 a hundredweight, which brought the price of sugar to $38.70 from $35.

Bill Davies, general sales manager for the company, said panic buying in Europe, combined with low-yield beet harvests, is driving the price upward. He predicted massive buyer resistance all over the world if prices continue to rise.

Russia ordered up to 500,000 tons of sugar in the open world market Monday, posing the threat of another rise in the global price, sugar trade circles said.

B.C. Rail strike

asked strikers to return to work pending a inquiry by the provincial labor relations board, but the Prince George employees rejected the plea at a Sunday meeting.

"We are out until we get a settlement," a spokesman said.

The labor board is looking into an application by the Canadian Union of Transport Employees (CUTE) to represent members of three of the five unions. A decision is expected by the weekend.

A railway spokesman said the CUTE application makes the present strike illegal under articles of the B.C. labor code.

The contract between the union and the company expired last week, and talks broke off shortly before that.

Pacific Press

News workers will hear offer

Joint Council of Newspaper Unions has agreed to recommend acceptance of a contract offer from Pacific Press Ltd. to its membership, council co-chairman Dave McIntyre said Monday.

He said the council's six unions would meet separately to vote on the offer from Pacific Press, which produces the Sun and the Province.

McIntyre did not disclose details of the offer. The council's original request was for an increase of $3 an hour across-the-board in a two-year contract. The company earlier offered an increase in two categories of $1.10 an hour in one year, with another increase to be negotiated next year.

A union spokesman said Sunday that "economic action" would be taken if a settlement was not reached by 8 p.m. Monday.

Pacific Press said all 1,400 workers would be locked out if any of the six unions went on strike.

The six unions are the Vancouver Typographical Union; the Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild; Graphic Arts International Union; Stereotypers, Electrotypers and Palatémakers Union; the Vancouver Mailers Union and the International Printing and Graphic Arts Union.

Renolds, Spectrum in final

Reynolds Roadrunners and Spectrum will meet Friday at Royal Athletic Park for the Colist Cup, emblematic of playoff supremacy in the Victoria inter-high school soccer league. League-champion Reynolds earned a berth in the final with a come-from-behind 3-2 win over Oak Bay Bays, Monday, while Spectrum posted a 4-2 decision over Victoria High Tyees in the second half of the doubleheader at Royal Athletic Park. A crowd of 1055 watched the action on the rain-soaked pitch. Striker Greg Booth played an outstanding game for Reynolds and notched the winning goal with a blistering drive from about 30 yards with only four minutes to play. Booth, who netted 20 goals in 16 regular-season games, had opened the scoring after only five minutes but the Roadrunners fell behind when Ed Jackson scored at 15 minutes and Peter Zachary scored directly from a corner kick shortly after the interval.

Reynolds struggled to get the equalizer and, after switching from a 4-2-4 formation to a 3-2-5 to get more striking power, were rewarded when Drew Finerty tallied at 76 minutes. In the second game, Spectrum jumped to a 3-0 lead on goals by Dan Hood, Doug Vincent and Wayne Reeves before Ron McGovern got one back for the Tyees, three minutes from halftime. Dave Shepherd put Spectrum three goals up on the first series of the second half and McGovern scored his second goal, at the 75-minute mark, to complete the scoring.

In league play this season, Reynolds scored a pair of 2-1 victories over Spectrum. The Spectrum victory also gave the new school the second Victoria berth in the B.C. high school playoffs. Spectrum and Victoria High finished the regular season tied with 25 points, four behind the front-running Roadrunners, who earned the first spot.

SLIDING TO THE TURF in an effort to get the ball away from Oak Bay's Steve Farrell is Jim McHaffie of Reynolds during action Monday night at Royal Athletic Park. Racing alongside the play is Keith Bridge of Reynolds.

Beleaguered Stars suffer through dearth of goals

Minnesota North Stars are pearly to have fallen on evil days.

Blues name new coach

ST. LOUIS — Garry Yojing, who two seasons ago was fired by California Golden Seals, has been named coach of St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League.

Young replace Lou Angotti, who resigned last week as the Blues floundered with a 2-5-2 record. Young will take over his new duties tonight for game against Los Angeles Kings.

Continuing a skid which started last season, when they slipped all the way to seventh place to miss the playoffs after finishing second and third in the two previous seasons, the North Stars took two solid beatings on the weekend.

They were never in it Monday night in Montreal, where Canadiens eased to a 6-1 win, but that wasn't as bad as it was Sunday night in Boston, where the Bruins had a 10-1 romp over the embattled Minnesotans.

Lack of scoring has been the biggest trouble for the North Stars, who are the lowest scoring team in the National Hockey League with only 20 goals from their 11 starts. They got 12 of them in the three games which brought them a tie and their two victories, they've been shut out twice and held to one goal in four games.

Steve Shutt, the 22-year-old leftwinger who looked so good last spring in the Stanley Cup playdowns and then reported to training camp packing excess weight, indicated he is finally in condition by leading Canadiens with two goals and an assist.

Canadiens were only 1-0 after the first period, but they outshot the North Stars by 33-14 in the final 40 minutes.

In Sunday's feature games, Philadelphia Flyers brought the ambitious New York Islanders up short with a 3-1 win, and Buffalo Sabres continued their advance by taking New York Rangers, 4-3.

Victory for the Stanley Cup champions was their fourth in a row and moved them ahead of the Islanders, who had their unbeaten streak ended at six games.

Sabres, now leading the Adams Division by three points, also won their fourth in a row. And Chicago Black Hawks ran their unbeaten streak to eight games, longest of the season, by playing to a 3-3 tie with Pittsburgh Penguins.

Speaking briefly

Foreman wants title fight probe

PARIS (AP) — George Foreman said Monday he will make official appeals to the World Boxing Council and World Boxing Association to investigate what he calls ring irregularities in his world heavyweight title fight against Muhammad Ali.

All became only the second heavyweight in boxing history to regain the title, knocking out Foreman in the eighth round of their scheduled 15-round bout at Kinshasa, Zaïre, early Wednesday.

"I don't expect and I'm not asking for anyone to give me my title back," Foreman said at a news conference. "But I feel there should be a report and a probe into what happened."

Foreman insisted that Ali's tactics were based on knowing about the ring conditions beforehand, that the canvas would be "soft as mud" and "the ropes loose enough to let him sit down and get out of the way."

Foreman said he did not see how the boxing governing bodies could ignore eyewitness reports that Ali's seconds tampered with the ropes during the fight.

Wade's nose patched up

QUARTERBACK Sunny Wade of Montreal Alouettes underwent surgery Monday to repair a broken nose suffered during Saturday's Eastern Football Conference game against Ottawa Rough Riders.

Centre Wayne Conrad (neck injury), quarterback Jimmy Jones (bruised ribs) and defensive back Dickie Harris (pulled muscle in side) are other Alouettes ailing but the latter two, at least, are expected to be able to practice later this week.

Bruce A. Norris, owner of Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League is to be released from hospital in Fort Lauderdale, where he has undergone treatment for injuries suffered in an Oct. 23 car accident. He suffered 11 broken ribs and underwent surgery for removal of his spleen.

Hisako "Chako" Higuchi, Japan's No. 1 women's pro golfer won the second annual LPGA $100,000 reinstated professional, scored the tying goal for the Ingrams with about five minutes remaining in the third period.

Junior recruits Steve Leatham and Garth Cunningham, and Roy Moretti were the other Ingrams scorers.

Daryl Hickson, Earl Robinson, Barry Wiebe and Nick Kawelek scored for the fourth-place Blues, who held a 5-2 lead after the second period.

Broken Arm

BALTIMORE (AP) — Running back Bobbie Clark of Cincinnati apparently suffered a broken right arm in the Bengals' 24-14 National Football League victory Sunday over Baltimore, and could be lost to the team for the rest of the season.

Tourneys halted

MONCTON (CP) — Delegates to the Canadian Federation of Amateur Baseball have decided to end age-limit tournaments. The decision means no more national baseball, bantam, midge or bison tournaments will be held.

Oak Bay rolls to Canadian football final

Oak Bay Farmer Construction is only one victory away from the Canadian juvenile football championship, and the squad has two weeks to prepare for the big game.

Farmers, who won the B.C. championship Sunday with a 16-7 win over Vancouver Meralomas at Royal Athletic Park, will meet the winner of the Eastern Canada-Manitoba semifinal for the national title, Nov. 17, at Vancouver's Empire Stadium.

Laval, the Quebec champions, scored a 6-0 win over West Brantford, Ont., in Montreal and St. Vital, 17-12 winners over Fort Garry, will meet in Winnipeg on Sunday to determine the other national finalist.

Oak Bay, making its third consecutive appearance in the B.C. final, rolled to an 8-0 lead in the first half, boosted the score to 16-0 in the third quarter and held on for the win over the Bower Mainland champions.

It was the first provincial title for a Vancouver Island team since 1970, when Saanich Hornets triumphed, and it will be the second straight year a B.C. club has reached the Canadian final. Surrey Rams represented B.C. in the inaugural Canadian juvenile championship last season, losing to the Quebec champion Lachine in Montreal.

Christie Sinclair, barged over from five yards to open the Oak Bay scoring and Scott Woodburn dashed 61 yards for another touchdown, midway through the third quarter.

Sinclair booted two conversions and Brad Tripp punted for a pair of singles.

Dave Baker scored for Meralomas in the fourth quarter, taking a pass from quarterback Paul Tendeck on a play which covered 35 yards. Tendeck added the convert to complete the scoring.

Meralomas came close to scoring in the latter stages of the game but Gareth Bloombe recovered a Vancouver fumble and Al Gray intercepted a Tendeck pass to relieve the pressure.

Each team managed 299 yards in total offence and Gordie Hemmings-coached Farmers held a 19-15 edge in first downs.

Farmers charged for 242 yards rushing and only 57 passing and were assessed 120 yards in penalties.

Meralomas relied on the strong passing arm of Tendeck for 188 yards, pushed for 111 more but were penalized 145 yards.

Another dull Monday night follows exciting NFL Sunday

Monday night brought an increasingly-familiar National Football League story, a dull game which failed to match interesting Sunday play.

Los Angeles Rams, closing in on a division championship, won on Monday, but it was only by 15-13 over San Francisco 49ers. It was the third win for the Rams since Jim Harris became their regular quarterback, but they managed it with a tough defence.

centred in Dallas, where the Cowboys handed St. Louis Cardinals their first defeat, and in Foxboro, Mass., where New England Patriots and Buffalo Bills duplicated their spectacular first meeting of the year.

In Dallas, where a defeat would almost certainly have doomed the Cowboys as far as a playoff spot is concerned, they won, 17-14, when Efren Herrera kicked a 20-yard field goal with only four seconds remaining.

Herrera's successful kick reversed what had been the usual order of things this season — in Buffalo last month, five of their first seven victories

Evergreen spiel

Braunstein wins

VANCOUVER — A Winnipeg rink skipped by Terry Braunstein is the latest winner of the Evergreen Tournament of Champions.

Braunstein, who just missed skipping a high school rink to the Canadian junior's championship in Victoria in 1958, won the $5,000 first prize on Monday night by defeating started with an 8-3 romp over Ron Northcott of Calgary and then slipped past John Trout of Edmonton, 8-5.

Kevin Smale of Prince George, 7-4. The Winnipeg rink, which had Don Wiles at third and George Boughey and Stuart Manness on the front end, qualified for the eight-rink final out of "B" event, defeating John Trout of Edmonton, 3-1, in a tense Sunday game.

On Monday, Braunstein

Smale, a former B.C. champion, reached his best form in the late going. With Pete Sherba back as vice-skip and Ernie Strassman and Ed Gladwin on the front end, Smale just made it into the eight-rink final.

He took the long road, coming out of "C" event and just making it by scoring three on the final end to edge Gary Ross of Winnipeg, 6-5. In the championship playoff, Smale mastered two good ones. He started by handing Jack Tucker, the former B.C. champion now playing out of Haney, his first defeat, 8-4. Then he bested defending champion George Fink of Calgary, 7-4.

Jim Armstrong, the former provincial schoolboy champion from Victoria who was the second rink to qualify out of "A" event, went down to his first loss when he was beaten, 5-4, by Trout in the first round of championship play.

Trout was one down coming home, but eased up to Armstrong's last rock for the winning point.

Smale won $3,000 of the $14,000 pot for finishing second and Fink, who defeated Trout, 12-6, took down third prize of $2,000. Trout won $1,200 and Tucker, Armstrong, Don Garratt of Calgary and Northcott all received $700 for qualifying for the championship playoff.

Bomber drops load of fertilizer pellets on forest

'Real booster shot'

Sensitive trees bombarded

CHEMAMOUS — Forests near here have been bombarded by planes dropping tiny white pellets.

Two aircraft have spread 300 tons of nitrogen fertilizer over 1,650 acres of Douglas fir trees in the Boulder Creek and Chemainus River valleys.

MacMillan Bloedel has been experimenting with aerial fertilization techniques since 1968, but this project at the Chemainus logging division, is "the most ambitious we've ever completed," said Don Reimer, the company's forester.

The forest involved is a stand of second growth Douglas fir 12 to 20 years old. Most of the stand has been thinned to ensure that stimulation of growth is concentrated on good potential crop trees.

"The Douglas fir is a very sensitive tree, and it can't take the stress of competing with other species, or with its own kind," Reimer said.

Proper thinning coupled with fertilization gives the trees a "real booster shot," he said.

Urea is the fertilizer used in this project and has a 46 per cent nitrogen content. The pellets dissolve slowly into the soil and provide a residual effect which lasts through several growing seasons.

Reimer estimated that the fertilization will produce an extra 300 cubic feet of wood per acre when the forests undergo their first commercial thinning in five to 10 years plus an additional 200 cubic feet per acre when the fully mature timber is harvested in 50 years.

The aerial fertilization, which the company will extend to other areas next fall, was a co-ordinated exercise in precision flying and on-the-button "bombing" techniques. The timber was divided into target zones and were bombed liberally with the tiny white pellets.

Piper Pawness were used. Single-engine on-seater planes powered by a 265-horsepower engine, built for slow speeds, tight turns and very short take-offs and landings.

A 500-foot-long landing strip was built atop a high ridge dividing the two valleys.

Because the aircraft were fertilizing primarily trees on the valley floors, and the landing strip was on the top of a ridge, the project meant some tricky flying.

After takeoff, the aircraft actually descend rather than ascend, and landing was a climb back up to the airstrip.

Distribution of the pellets over the drop zone was controlled by the pilot from the cockpit. When he reached the target area, he opened the door below the storage compartment in the front of the aircraft and the pellets flew out through a spreader.

The bin and hopper arrangement in the under belly of the plane could spread a 1,000-pound load of pellets from about 100 feet above the treetops.

By the end of the project, loading, takeoff, dumping and reloading took four minutes.

November 16 ruled out for money bylaw vote

NANAIMO — Taxpayers in the city of Nanaimo will not be voting Nov. 16 on a money bylaw after all.

The bylaw was proposed to get voter opinion on whether the city should undertake construction of an addition to the Bowen Park complex, and make a $200,000 start on a waterfront park at the estuary of the Millstone River. The total amount of the projects covered by bylaw was $550,000.

It was hoped that the vote could be held Nov. 16, the same day that others will be out to choose five new members of the Nanaimo school board. However, city controller Howard Nicholson said that Monday was the last possible day to advertise the holding of the vote and, since the bylaw has not as yet received approval from the municipal affairs department, the vote cannot be held.

Groves found guilty of theft

VANCOUVER (CP) — Former construction president Robert Groves has been found guilty of stealing $176,000 from his company, Groves-Raffin Construction. Mr. Justice E. E. Hinkson remanded him in custody until Nov. 22 and ordered a presentence report before passing sentence on the theft conviction.

Two more candidates join election fight

NANAIMO — Two more persons added their names to the growing list of candidates for the eighth city council seats which will be decided in the civic election here Dec. 14.

The council was increased in size from six to eight aldermen with the approval of the amalgamation referendum Saturday.

Hunger meal for inmate

A "hunger supper" in support of jailed Ukrainian historian Valentyn Moroz will be held tonight by the University of Victoria Ukrainian Club. The supper, a simple meal of bread, kapusta (boiled cabbage) and water, will begin at 6:30 p.m. at the Ukrainian Catholic Church at Cook and Caladonia. The public is invited.

Nicholson said he expects the necessary approval to come in time for the money bylaw after all.

Transfer approved

CUMBERLAND — Council here has approved the transfer of 2.3 acres of land from school district 71. Part of the land will be leased to the newly-formed Comox Cerebral Palsy and Neurological Society and to Cumberland day care centre.

Council, at a meeting this week, agreed to make a grant to the Family Division Committee. The committee's efforts have been responsible for the establishment of the group-living home in Courtenay, the Friendly Visitors Organization, and other social action projects in the Comox Valley.

Reunion of Beatles worth $7 million

LONDON (AP) — John Lennon says the Beatles have been offered $7 million to get together again, but he won't say who made the offer.

"For a full Beatles reunion, I have been offered $7 million. And I could get about $2 million just by myself," Lennon was quoted as telling a London reporter in a New York interview.

The Beatles, the hottest music group of the 1960s, broke up five years ago.

Under new act . . .

'Tenants have all the rights'

By JIM GIBSON
Colonist Reporter

Bob Hutton believes tenants have all the rights and that landlords like himself are powerless under the new Landlord and Tenant Act.

It's the only conclusion he can reach, he said, after his trouble Friday in attempting to evict a tenant from his apartment, Squire House, 268 Superior.

Hutton, manager of the building, served an eviction notice on a woman tenant whose boyfriend repeatedly squealed his car tires in the parking lot in the early morning.

Warnings were issued but he continued to be noisy and other tenants complained to Hutton.

Hutton said the woman didn't bother to appeal her eviction notice in writing to the B.C. Rentalsman as the new law provides.

So out she was to go, thought Hutton, who had rented her the apartment.

But she stayed as her lawyer said she could.

And new tenants who arrived Friday morning found themselves out on the sidewalk with their furniture.

Hutton tried to get a court order Friday forcing the woman to vacate but the sheriff would not serve the tenant notice.

Court officials said they didn't want to get involved in a landlord-tenant dispute, Hutton said in an interview over the weekend.

Before the new act, Hutton said, a tenant disputing an eviction order had to appear before a judge and argue why he shouldn't be evicted. And if the reasons weren't good enough, the sheriff paid a visit and the tenant went apartment hunting.

Hutton sought help Friday from the Rentalsman's office in Vancouver and was told by Deputy-Rentalsman Phil Barter to tell the tenacious tenant that "she may be liable for damages for refusal to get out of the building."

Meantime, the woman was asked to submit her reasons why she shouldn't be evicted to the Rentalsman for study.

If the tenant is at fault, Barter said Monday, an order of early termination of tenancy will be issued by the Rentalsman's office. Barter warned that this order is as binding as a court order.

He said Hutton was among those landlords across the province who found themselves issuing eviction notices in the transition period between the old and new act proclaimed Oct. 1.

Barter said the Rentalsman waived the 15-day period provided under the new act because tenants might not have known they could challenge an eviction order and were waiting for the landlord to take them to court to dispute the eviction.

However, he said, this only applied to Nov. 1 evictions.

Tenants smashing walls or repeatedly playing their stereos at full blast at 2 a.m. can still be thrown out. The act lists 14 situations for termination of residency by the landlord.

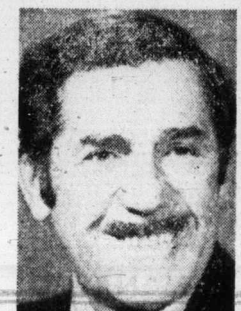

But Gordon Reeson, president of the Greater Victoria Apartment Owners Association, fears the Rentalsman may require too exacting documentation of tenant misbehavior before allowing a challenged eviction order.

Reeson doubts many tenants who complain to him about vandalism or noise will want to put it in writing as he expects the Rentalsman will require.

However, Reeson doesn't think the requirements for eviction now favor the tenant. He said it all will depend on how the Rentalsman interprets them.

New Nanaimo city urged to 'go slow'

By FRED CURRIE
Colonist Correspondent

NANAIMO — City council, which will take over administration of the newly amalgamated city Jan. 1, must begin its first term of office on the right foot, says a veteran of Nanaimo district public life.

Mrs. Ada Howden of Wellington, who has served as a trustee on the Wellington Water District board for many years, and as a regional district board director since it was established in B.C. said Monday that negative thinking about parochialism brought on by the ward system should be stopped immediately.

"We will be all one city soon, and we must start thinking and working as one city. Forget this parochial garbage. The ward system has been proved at the regional district level where directors are working for the good of an entire area and not their own electoral district. The challenge has been met there and the same can hold true at the city council level.

"On the basis of the people who have announced they will run for council, I think the new city will be in good hands," she said.

Mrs. Howden said she was a little surprised at the outcome of the vote. Particularly the strength of the opposition to amalgamation shown in the Wellington area, where nearly 50 per cent of those eligible voted, and where about 75 per cent voted against the merger.

Mrs. Howden said if Lantzville had been included in the new city, the vote would have failed.

"It is obvious to me that nearly all of the 250 or so voters there would have voted against the merger, and that would have been enough to defeat it," she said.

Looking ahead, Mrs. Howden is concerned about certain aspects of life in the improvement districts and how they will be handled by the new city council.

"There is a real job to be done with regard to the volunteer firemen in the districts. They are a dedicated group and I would hate to see any of them lost."

The restructuring committee recommended in its final report that each district firehall be manned 24 hours a day by a small group of full-time firemen, to be augmented by volunteers for firefighting.

Another of the major considerations affecting the new council is the question of conversion of all districts to water meters, she said.

In many areas, water is paid for on a flat rate. The city, on the other hand, is metered and water charges are based on usage.

"I hope the new council will find it necessary to spend half a million dollars to install water meters — immediately. I think the change can be phased in, perhaps over a five-year period, to allow residents to get used to the idea."

"There are methods of handling these difficult problems which will not cause hard feelings and make people regret the amalgamation."

Mayor Frank Ney Monday was still urging a "go slow" policy on the changes to come in the city administration, just as he did before the vote.

Ney said earlier that rushing into these changes would "create chaos."

Ney said the result of the vote here Saturday, which produced a slim margin of 52 per cent in favor of the merger, shows that a large group of voters are concerned about taxes.

"For this reason, I feel the new council will have to keep a tight rein on the budget while recognizing that all the people in the new city are going to ask for and be in need of additional improvements and services. The result presents a very challenging picture for the new council, which must work to try to keep taxes down while satisfying the needs of the people."

"We must look to the positive side and do our best to ensure that the fiscal policy of council is fair to all."

The mayor said there will be problems for new aldermen "and not always easy ones." But, he added, "I am still an optimist. We should go into this thing gradually and I'm sure we will meet the challenge successfully."

The old city of Nanaimo will cease to exist on Dec. 31, which coincides with the end of the city's 100th anniversary year. The new city comes into being the following day.

$5.4 million project

Hatchery nearing completion

CAMPBELL RIVER — The federal fisheries department's newest salmon hatchery is nearing completion on Quinsam River, three miles from Campbell River.

The $5.4 million project is the second hatchery to be completed in the department's long-range program for salmon resource expansion. The Capilano Hatchery was completed in 1971, and record returns are being made this year as the first spawning adults return.

The Quinsam hatchery is located on 150 acres at the confluence of the Quinsam River and Cold Creek. The site has one of the largest free-flowing sources of groundwater in western Canada. Constant temperature of groundwater is important in salmon culture. A crown reserve has been placed on the Cold Creek watershed, guaranteeing an uncontaminated flow in future years.

Coho, chinook and steelhead, species that spawn naturally in the river system, will be raised in the hatchery with coho as the major thrust — 2,000 adult coho and 200 chinook are now in holding ponds ready for the first egg takes.

The hatchery has a capacity of up to 15 million eggs and it is anticipated there will be a return of approximately 214,000 adults made up from 185,000 coho, 27,000 chinook and 2,000 steelhead.

Production from the hatchery will make a substantial contribution to the west coast troll fleet, the Johnstone Strait net fisheries, and the sport fishery in the Georgia Strait and Campbell River areas, as well as in the Campbell and Quinsam River systems, officials say.

The Quinsam public display area will not be completed until the spring, when the hatchery will be formally opened.

AROUND THE ISLAND

Logging road turns drag strip

COURTENAY — A stretch of the Crown Zellerbach logging road, between Lake Trail and Cumberland roads, has been designated as a drag strip.

Mike Armstrong, spokesman for the racers, said organizers have obtained permission of the RCMP and Crown Zellerbach for meets each Sunday between noon and 5 p.m.

He said entrance for spectators will be from Lake Trail Road and parking will be near the spectator entrance.

Strict rules have been laid down for both drivers and spectators.

No spectators will be allowed on the pavement no closer than 50 feet behind the starting line.

Drivers must use seat belts and no passengers will be permitted during racing.

COURTENAY — A recreation hall, 14 low-rental units and a 37-unit co-operative housing development are in the planning stages here.

The hall and low-rental units are planned for Kwanis Village housing project on Pidecock Avenue and Kwanis club member Norman Leung expects construction to start early next year.

The complex now houses 34 citizens and this expansion will be the final phase in the service club's project.

The 37-unit co-operative development, for wage earners in the $8,000 to $12,000 bracket, will be adjacent to the Kwanis Village. Work is expected to begin in February.

PARKSVILLE — Parksville Anglican Parish will be host to another visitor from the far north, Dr. Hilda Hellaby, a deaconess who has devoted her life's work to the church in the north.

Through Dr. Hellaby's work Parksville parish adopted the parish of Ross River as a missionary outreach. Parishioners will have the opportunity of meeting Dr. Hellaby at an informal gathering in the parish hall today at 2:30 p.m.

COURTENAY — Approval of a loan and contribution totalling $56,500 to the Upper Island Mental Health Society for a special care home here, has been announced by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

The loan, which includes a federal contribution of $5,650, will assist in the acquisition and conversion of a large two-storey six-bedroom house for use as a residence for 10 recovered adult mental patients.

The accommodation is provided for patients leaving hospital, and people living in the community who need a period of supervised care and who are referred by doctors and social agencies.

COURTENAY — School District 71 trustees decided this week to recommend to Education Minister Eileen Daily approval of a capital expense proposal totalling $1,049,200.

In the amount allocated for construction and additions, $682,000 is earmarked for Comox junior high school, Lake Trail junior high school $131,000 and Courtenay junior high school $39,500.

Lake Trail and Comox schools will also benefit from $23,000 allocated for equipment, while $10,000 is being sought for the elementary curriculum changes.

COMOX — Ald. Dennis Coleman has termed "a bunch of nonsense" a request from the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities seeking views on highway needs and priorities from individuals and organizations.

The alderman asked what the association could do that the Comox-Strathcona regional board could not do.

A pre-schooler who lives down the street was curious about grandparents. It occurred to me that to a child, grandparents appear like an apparition with no explanation, no job description, and few credentials. They just seem to go with the territory. This column, then, is for the little folks who wonder what a grandparent is.

A grandparent can always be counted on to buy all of your cookies, flower seeds, all-purpose greeting cards, transparent tape, paring knives, peanut brittle, and ten chances on a pony. (Also a box of taffy when they have dentures.)

A grandparent helps you with the dishes when it is your night.

A grandparent will sit through a Greek comedy for three hours to watch her grandson and wonder how Aristophanes has time to write plays when he is married to Jackie Onassis.

A grandparent is the only baby sitter who doesn't charge more after midnight or anything before midnight.

Author sees parallel with Nixon's quitting

He was just 'David' to her

NEW YORK (AP) — When Ralph G. Martin decided to write a book about the Duke and Duchess of Windsor he found he faced a challenge — to find the answer to the question that has been asked for nearly 40 years:

Why?

"Here was the Prince Charming of the world — gay, debonair, handsome," explained the author of The Woman He Loved. "Women were waiting in line. He could pick any one of them, and whom does he pick? A woman 40 years old, divorced, and really not beautiful."

"Why?"

Martin found his answer one afternoon in the quiet drawing room of a house on the Riviera, where the duchess agreed to see him because she had read and liked his previous book, Jennie: The Life of Lady Randolph Churchill.

"We had had a warm, friendly lunch," he recalled. "She was full of beans, witty, sharp, laughing, keeping the conversation going when it lagged. She was almost 80 but looked 20 years younger."

Her eyes are her most dramatic feature — great big, violet-blue, looking as if every word I said was the most interesting thing she had ever heard and as if I was the most fascinating man she had ever met."

"I thought, 'My God, this is how she caught him.' And indeed it was."

"With her the duke was a human being. He was not a celebrity. With her he was just a man she called David, while everyone else called him 'sir.' She watched over him, she took a glass out of his hand if she thought he'd had too much to drink. She was his mother, sister, sweetheart and friend. She was not just a love or a passion with him. She was an obsession."

Martin spent two years researching and writing the book. He travelled extensively, read countless books, checked newspaper files, dug into church records. He interviewed dozens of people who had known the pair, including every one of the living schoolmates of the former Wallis Warfield at a girls' boarding school in Baltimore.

"This is the first time the whole thing can be told," the author commented. "A great many people who loved the duke would not have talked while he was alive. It is not only the greatest love story but it turned out to be a spy story in Spain, a mystery story in the Bahamas and a political story with the abdication."

Martin sees parallels between the inexorable course of events leading toward the abdication and similar forces resulting in the resignation of former president Nixon.

"Circumstances take over and you're no longer in control. Everything comes crashing down. Both the duke and the president thought till the last minute they could handle it but they got caught in a web of statements, decisions and circumstances."

The difference was that "the king would never have hesitated to do it again." While he believes that the duke was more in love with the duchess than she with him, he said there is no question that she was happy.

"She always had a consciousness that she was a piece of romantic history and the whole world paid enormous attention to everything she did."

"She had to pay a price for it, but the price was right."

A wino makes it back

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Jerry, an American Indian, led a wasted life during his childhood. He never knew his parents and had to fend for himself.

There wasn't much to do on the Rosebud reserve in South Dakota so he spent a considerable amount of his time getting in trouble with the law. He spurned schooling as a symbol of the white man.

One thing led to another and Jerry became an alcoholic. He became familiar with the interior of jail cells and eventually served a lengthy sentence in a Kansas prison.

He has been sober for 20 years now, he told a recent Georgian Bay district Alcoholics Anonymous convention, and his life as a drunk now is just a bad memory.

Jerry — his full name was withheld to protect his anonymity — told 300 alcoholics at the convention that Alcoholics Anonymous saved him from a life in prison and possible early death.

"I was a wino, not by choice but because of financial reasons," said Jerry, who lives in Detroit. He described how he begged for nickels and dimes to buy rubbing alcohol which he mixed with grapefruit juice.

"I remember trying desperately to drink the rubbing alcohol mix, my stomach in convulsions, and asking God at the same time to help me keep it down."

Jerry described 13 months he spent "close to insanity" in a prison psychopathic ward after a drinking spree.

"I lay there for 13 months never knowing if it was day or night. My mouth frothed, my stomach heaved and my nose would run so badly I couldn't breathe. The only thing I had to depend on was God."

He said he called on God to "show me what to do because I didn't want to die."

Jerry's back was covered with painful bed sores from lying constantly on the narrow prison cot. He joined Alcoholics Anonymous while in prison.

Bargaining in glare of flames

MONTREAL (CP) — Many Montrealers say the 30-hour strike by 2,400 firemen was one of the most frightening periods in the city's history.

For three nights — Thursday, Friday and Saturday — the sky glowed red in areas where fires burned out of control. Some could be seen from offices where efforts were being made to end the strike.

The firemen, prohibited by law from going on strike, finally agreed to a settlement early Sunday following the personal intervention of Premier Robert Bourassa.

Mayor Jean Drapeau said the city would pay the firemen the $750 cost-of-living bonus they sought, but it would be considered an annex to a still-to-be-negotiated 1975 contract.

The firemen wanted their present contract renegotiated to make the $750 part of their 1974 salary scale. The city refused on grounds that other unions would demand renegotiation of 1974 contracts.

The city agreed to stop injunction proceedings against the firemen's union, but will not drop legal action against individual firemen for damage to equipment during months leading up to the strike.

In a television interview Sunday, Drapeau suggested that citizens consult their law-

No limit for new homes

Rent ceiling goes to 10.6 per cent

By JIM HUME
Colonist Reporter

The provincial government will boost the 8 per cent rental ceiling by 2.6 per cent on Jan. 1, 1975, and lift the ceiling entirely from new rental accommodation.

Under the Landlord and Tenant Amendment Act, introduced in the Legislature late Monday the rental ceiling will rise from 8 per cent to 10.6 per cent on existing accommodation, providing the landlord informs his tenants of the increase before the end of November.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, who introduced the amendments, said he "didn't expect to come out smelling like a rose. If I had tried to please everyone, I wouldn't have been doing my job. I'm a cabinet minister, and that's where the buck stops."

Macdonald said the five-year exemption from rental controls for new accommodation was designed to encourage new building. He added that, as the usual mortgage term for such buildings is five years, "we are advised that there is little pressure to increase rents during that period."

He said the government wanted to encourage new construction and at the same time protect middle and low-income tenants from unjustified increases. "The policy embodied in these amendments will achieve that end," he said.

The specific recommendations in the revised legislation are:

• No rental limit on new rental accommodation for the first five years.

• Increases on existing accommodation 10.6 per cent a year, plus an allowance for major renovations. The allowance is limited to 12 per cent per year of the cost of the renovations. (A $1,000 renovation job would permit a rent increase of $120 a year).

• A rent review commission to hear appeals from tenants in limited cases and to continue to study all aspects of rental problems. The commission will report to the legislature a year from now.

• The three-months notice provision for rent increases will be waived for rents coming into effect in January and February, providing notice is in tenants' hands before the end of this month.

• Owners of mobile homes may apply to the rent review commission for exemption.

• Security deposits will be limited to half of one month's rent, and will be held by the landlord. The landlord will credit the tenant with 8 per cent interest per year on the deposit and, when a tenancy ends, the landlord will repay the tenant the deposit with interest or forward it to the B.C. Rentalsman in the case of a dispute.

Macdonald said the 10.6 per cent ceiling "represents a figure which will be sufficient to meet anticipated increases in operating costs over the next year."

Landlords in the province have claimed they required a 20 per cent increase just to stay even with spiralling costs of fuel and maintenance.

Under the new amendments, a tenant is advised not to pay more than 10.6 per cent as an annual increase.

One NDP MLA bolts ranks in market vote

To no one's surprise, a Social Credit motion to defer the Natural Products Marketing Act failed Tuesday, but a crack appeared in government ranks when the vote was called. (See earlier story page 32.)

Roy Cummings (NDP-Vancouver-Little Mountain) was the only non-Socialist who voted to table the bill for six months, to give the standing committee on agriculture a chance to examine the operation of marketing boards.

Debate on the bill, which will establish an oversight board with community representation, took up most of Tuesday's sitting, but when the vote on the Social Credit motion came, it lost 37-11.

Although Liberals voted with the government, they made it clear they wanted the entire bill tossed out.

Gardner (L.Vancouver-Point Grey) said the bill "should not be deferred, it should be wiped out. What we don't need in B.C. is Moscow marketing."

The Social Credit claim that a six-month delay would allow Agriculture Minister David Stupich to revise the legislation is like claiming "that the postponement of an execution is an act of compassion," Gardner added.

After the vote, Cummings said he supported the Social Credit action because the legislation "doesn't enshrine consumer representation" on the board.

He wants half of the 10 members of the new board to be consumers, and said the government might consider such an amendment.

The NDP caucus didn't know he would vote against the government, Cummings explained, but he said he expected "only smiles" at today's caucus meeting.

Coal firms offer 40% package deal

WASHINGTON (AP)

U.S. coal industry and union negotiators, faced with a growing strike threat, were reported to have broken a 24-hour impasse in bargaining Monday night as management offered a comprehensive contract proposal.

The package, a counterproposal to the union's latest economic demands, is believed to represent a better-than-40-per-cent increase in wages and benefits over three years.

Sources said the new management offer was made shortly after negotiators for the coal operators and the United Mine Workers resumed talks, at the urging of W. J. Usery, the government's chief labor mediator.

Earlier Monday Usery met separately with the top industry and union negotiators in an effort to bring the two sides together.

Don't fool your frog with mating call

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Owners will be allowed to encourage their pet frogs with pleading, whistling and singing in the South African Frog Olympics next Saturday.

But hissing like a snake, imitating mating calls and lighting firecrackers are forbidden.

Imitating a mating cry "subjects the frog to moral cruelty and severe disappointment and is most strongly deprecated," the rules say.

Assessment base

B.C. returns to old system

The provincial government confirmed Monday that it is abandoning any attempt to bring assessments in B.C. up to 100 per cent of market value by 1975.

A special bill to amend the Assessment Act, passed last spring, was introduced in the Legislature for first reading late Monday afternoon. In effect, the bill suspends section 24, the clause requiring land and improvements to be assessed at actual value.

In turn the amendment, when approved by the Legislature, means that assessments for 1975 will be frozen at the 1974 level.

B.C. Rail traffic stopped

VANCOUVER (UPI) — British Columbia Railway operations were partially shut down Monday after some members of the company's striking shopcraft unions set up picket lines.

About 85 of the 550 strikers from five unions began picketing the railway Sunday at Prince George, and other workers refused to cross the lines.

B.C. Rail passenger service between Vancouver and Prince George was also shut down.

The workers have been on strike since Friday, but no pickets were reported in other parts of the province, where the railway, owned by the provincial government, provides passenger and freight service.

Owners, tenants all up in arms

By JON FERRY
Colonist Reporter

The government's proposed rental legislation has succeeded only in bringing to the boil the mounting discontent among both landlord and tenant groups in Victoria and Vancouver.

Directors of the Rental Housing Council of B.C. — which claims to represent 1,600 landlords managing 100,000 rental suites, including 12,000 in Victoria — will meet in emergency session today at noon.

Executive director Richard

Dolan told the Colonist: "It seems inevitable now that strike actions will be taken, which we deeply regret."

These "strike actions" could include landlords withholding vacant suites from the market and refusing to pay Hydro bills representing increases of more than 8 per cent.

Meanwhile, an incensed Bruce Yorkie, B.C. Tenants Organization president, said his group would hold a news conference in Vancouver this morning after it had received

IRA woman bomber gets 12 life terms

WAKEFIELD, England (AP) — A 25-year-old English woman was convicted Monday of murdering 12 people by bombing an army bus last February.

Judith Teresa Ward, a member of the Irish Republican Army, was sentenced to 12 life prison sentences, to run concurrently, for the murders and 20 years in prison for causing the explosion.

Wakefield Crown Court also sentenced her to 10 years for bombing the National Defence College in Buckinghamshire and five years, to run concurrently, for bombing London's Euston train station.

She pleaded not guilty to all charges.

The slim, fair-haired woman grabbed the side of the wooden prisoner's dock as the verdicts were announced, but her expression remained unchanged as sentences were passed.

Sir George Waller, the justice, made no recommendation for a minimum time Miss Ward should remain in prison because "these offences are so heinous that no figure could be put on that would be appropriate to their gravity."

Nine soldiers returning from weekend leave were killed in the bus blast on a highway in Yorkshire in central England. The wife and two children of one of them also were killed.

Kick in the head, wrong university

Lost circus three-ring blunder

LONDON (UPI) — The case of the vanishing circus ended Monday when five truckloads of performing animals, jugglers and assorted performers turned up in the university town of Cambridge.

But they should have been in the university town of Oxford, where the big top had already been set up, and clowns and elephants grew impatient.

The Hoffman Circus convoy became separated during the weekend when transport manager Peter Mack was kicked in the head by a mule and had to spend a night in hospital.

In his absence, the five-truck caravan went astray from the main body of the circus on the 56-mile drive from London to Oxford.

The missing troupe included a ringmaster, his wife and son, French jugglers and trick cyclists, two elephants, two camels, six llamas, one donkey, two mules, six Shetland ponies, two palomino horses and a bison.

A rather long missing persons and animals report was flashed throughout the south of England and by midday the caravan was found at Cambridge — about 80 miles off the mark.

"We are relieved that the

Squealing tires didn't get speedy eviction

Colonist Reporter

Bob Hutton believes tenants have all the rights and that landlords like himself are powerless under the new Landlord and Tenant Act. It's the only conclusion he can reach, he said, after his trouble Friday in attempting to evict a tenant from his apartment, Squire House, 268 Superior.

Hutton, manager of the building, served an eviction notice on a woman tenant whose boyfriend repeatedly squealed his car tires in the parking lot in the early morning.

Warnings were issued but he continued to be noisy and other tenants complained to Hutton.

Hutton said the woman didn't bother to appeal her eviction notice in writing to the B.C. Rentalsman as the new law provides.

So out she was to go, thought Hutton, who had rented her the apartment. But she stayed as her lawyer said she could.

And new tenants who arrived Friday morning found themselves out on the sidewalk with their furniture.

Hutton tried to get a court order Friday forcing the woman to vacate but the sheriff would not serve the tenant notice.

Court officials said they didn't want to get involved in a landlord-tenant dispute, Hutton said in an interview over the weekend.

Before the new act, Hutton said, a tenant disputing an eviction order had to appear before a judge and argue why he shouldn't be evicted. And if the reasons weren't good enough, the sheriff paid a visit and the tenant went apartment hunting.

Hutton sought help Friday from the Rentalsman's office in Vancouver and was told by Deputy-Rentalsman Phil

Barter to tell the tenacious tenant that "she may be liable for damages for refusal to get out of the building."

Meantime, the woman was asked to submit her reasons why she shouldn't be evicted to the Rentalsman for study.

If the tenant is at fault, Barter said Monday, an order of early termination of tenancy will be issued by the Rentalsman's office. Barter warned that this order is as binding as a court order.

He said Hutton was among those landlords across the province who found themselves issuing eviction notices in the transition period between the old and new act proclaimed Oct. 1.

Barter said the Rentalsman waived the 15-day period provided under the new act because tenants might not have known they could challenge an eviction order and were waiting for the landlord to take them to court to dispute the eviction.

However, he said, this only applied to Nov. 1 evictions.

Tenants smashing walls or repeatedly playing their stereos at full blast at 2 a.m. can still be thrown out. The act lists 14 situations for termination of residency by the landlord.

But Gordon Reeson, president of the Greater Victoria Apartment Owners Association, fears the Rentalsman may require too exacting documentation of tenant misbehavior before allowing a challenged eviction order.

Reeson doubts many tenants who complain to him about vandalism or noise will want to put it in writing as he expects the Rentalsman will require.

However, Reeson doesn't think the requirements for eviction now favor the tenant. He said it all will depend on how the Rentalsman interprets them.

Press bothers union

Case of meeting that never was

The presence of reporters and heavy downtown traffic played havoc Monday with what was to have been the first labor-management meeting in this year's round of Greater Victoria library pay talks.

Canadian Union of Public Employees representatives appeared disgusted with the library board's new idea of opening negotiations to the press.

They left minutes after their arrival shortly before 2 p.m. at the Central Library's second-floor board-room.

The result was that when four members of the board's negotiating committee, who had been delayed by a parking snarl, eventually made their way to the negotiating table they found it was a case of the meeting that never was.

Library board chairman Ald. Shirley Dowell was the only management negotiating committee member present to witness the ire of the CUPE man at being surprised by two reporters.

Ald. Dowell told the Colonist the board felt that opening up initial negotiations to the public would be to the taxpayers' advantage.

"It was the unanimous decision by the library board that the public should now know what the CUPE demands are right away."

CUPE field representative Alex Markides, accompanied by three members of Local 410 (a local representing 82 library staff), saw it differently.

Markides said he was completely surprised by the board's seemingly "futile" idea of opening up negotiations.

"The union has not been officially notified in any manner that there would be people other than the negotiating committee for the library board present... we are not prepared to negotiate in that way."

The library board's "open negotiation" experiment now goes back for further discussion by board members Nov. 26.

Ducks' crossing Oak Bay warns

Oak Bay council has approved the installation of a sign near Royal Victoria Yacht Club to warn motorists of mallard ducks which cross the road from the beach at that point.

Ald. John Gault introduced the motion Monday after a complaint from a woman in the neighborhood, whose garden is visited by the ducks and who has noticed the ducks almost being run over by cars.

Questions, questions, no answer

Elusive new school still unbuilt

By BILL LEVER
Colonist Reporter

Where is the new school? In a newsletter to parents, Spectrum Community School principal Wally Russell says "I am asked this question each day."

But he still doesn't have a definite answer. Despite the fact the new school has been planned for four years, neither does anyone else.

Spectrum, the independent secondary school planned as a replacement for Hecate View, has encountered a long series of bureaucratic and financial stumbling blocks, and construction is yet to begin on the Burnside-Acorn site purchased by the school board in March 1971.

Everybody, with the apparent exception of the education department, is getting impatient.

Russell, answering the daily queries from parents and students, tells them he understands construction will begin as soon as the education department completes a review of construction costs and approves building the school under contract management. The study is expected to be completed by Nov. 12.

"I urge you to be patient until this report is completed," Russell writes in his newsletter. "If the go-ahead is not received at that time, I can only suggest that Spectrum parents must get political."

The latest financial delay to construction came in August when bids for the contract were more than $1 million over the $3.5 million ceiling set by the government.

The school board rejected the bids and attempted to proceed with construction on a contract management basis, which would involve contractor, architect and owner working together to find the most inexpensive building methods and materials.

But the education department intervened and demanded a cost-design analysis to be conducted by an independent team of consultants.

That analysis, at a cost of $10,000 split equally by the school board and education department, has begun and is expected to be complete in about two weeks.

School district officials, as well as the Spectrum staff, are dismayed at this seemingly pointless delay.

Walter Donald, school board construction committee chairman, said it's obvious that costs are not going down while the study continues.

"We wanted to build as much as we can with as much money as we have," Donald says. "We still want that."

Russell agrees. "While they're still deciding whether they can afford it, the contractor is sitting on his thumbs and we're sitting here in a 42-year-old school while construction costs continue skyrocketing."

Missing auto found in lake

A 1961 Austin Healey stolen from Shelbourne Street over the weekend was found with its rear sticking up out of Duran Lake Monday night. Saanich police reported.

Police believe the thieves dumped it in the lake.

Rights meeting planned in city

Human rights ministers from across Canada will meet Thursday and Friday in Victoria to discuss such matters as the policies and objectives of human rights legislation.

In announcing the meeting Monday, Labor Minister William King said human rights commissioners and directors from across the country will also be attending.

Sugar soars again, consumers hoard

The wholesale price of sugar rose Monday by another $4.70 for 100 pounds and, while there is no major shortage in Greater Victoria, store shelves have had to hustle to keep shelves stocked as customers buy in quantity before prices go up at the retail level, too.

Since last week, when the wholesale price of sugar rose $5.25 a hundredweight, shoppers have been hoarding as much as they can buy.

Apart from Woodward's, which has been sold out of sugar since Saturday, and is not expecting a new shipment until Wednesday, most Greater Victoria stores have limited supplies at old prices—about 54 cents a pound in bulk.

Canada Safeway, at Town and Country shopping centre, ordered an additional 2,000 pounds of sugar Friday in anticipation of extra demand and nearly all was sold by Monday night. A new order will arrive today.

A spokesman for Esquimalt Warehouse said there was frantic buying on the weekend. "I've never seen it like that before," he said.

When a new shipment arrives this week, the price may be increased nine to 10 cents a pound, he surmised.

Malkins and other wholesale suppliers said their stocks are low.

At Malkins, there are usually four or five days' stock in reserve, according to a spokesman, but "in the past few days it has been going out as fast as it's come in."

Malkins supplies Shop-Easy and large independent stores.

Waiting

Vacant former Ocean Cement site on Victoria's Inner Harbor is now a temporary parking lot until final use is determined. Fee for every two hours is 25 cents, subject to review at least once a year. Site was bought more than three years ago by city in partnership with provincial and federal governments under now discontinued urban renewal scheme.

Esquimalt houseboats float on uncertain sea

Esquimalt council may have a housing problem that floats beyond its reach with the increasing number of houseboats in West Bay Marina.

Council's legal right to control the standards and numbers of such accommodation is being studied, Ald. Terry Prentice told his planning, zoning, and housing committee Monday night.

Prentice said a 1971 zoning amendment prohibited boat shelters and boathouses at marinas.

But, Prentice added, it is not clear whether boathouses include houseboats.

One houseboat resident attending the committee meeting estimated that close to 30 persons live aboard boats and houseboats at the marina.

John Melnyk, spokesman for West Bay Marina, said six new houseboats are under construction.

In answer to Prentice's statement that houseboats "historically tend to be a sub-standard type of housing," Melnyk said houseboats at the marina were approved esthetically by him and met strict marina sewage regulations.

Mayor Art Young noted that houseboat residents sent their children to municipal schools, but "did not contribute one plug nickel to Esquimalt's taxes."

Despite Melnyk's concern that his houseboaters and marina wanted to become "good corporate citizens," Prentice said there was no way that residents could pay municipal taxes. The marina does pay taxes.

In other business, the committee, under Prentice's urging, made no recommendation concerning a proposed density development of a 23-acre tract on Admirals.

Prentice said he wanted to hold another meeting with residents to discuss their opposition to the plan that would put a 50-unit townhouse development in the area.

Saanich zoning:

Wish causes stir

Zoning for the entire Queenwood Road-MacDonald Drive area in Saanich will be reviewed because one man wants to subdivide his property.

D'Arcy Bridgman, of 2600 MacDonald, wants to subdivide his property and build another home, but the lots would be smaller than the one-half acre minimum zoning for the area.

Saanich council decided Monday to table Bridgman's application until municipal planner Tom Loney completes a report on sewer and sewerage lots, with the intention of updating the area's zoning by-law.

"The one-half acre zoning was brought in in the day of septic tanks," Ald. William Campbell told council, after Ald. Mel Couveller pointed out the lot fronts on a sewer.

"Common sense points to us finding a way to accommodate Mr. Bridgman," Couveller said. He added that development of the property would be an improvement and that immediate neighbors have no objection to Bridgman's plans.

However, Loney said he had found mixed feelings among residents, some wanting to subdivide their large lots and others opposed to any development.
